SCHLEE AND BROCK TWICE DRIVEN BACK ON TOKYO FLIGHT

Around-World Fliers Are Forced Down by Storm Near Nagasaki.

JOURNEY IS RESUMED; THEN AIRMEN RETURN

Police Inquiry Follows Their Descent Near Forbidden Fortified Region.

Tokyo, Monday, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, flying the monoplane Pride of Detroit, around the world, were forced back to Omura, near Nagasaki, this morning after hopping off for Kasumigaura, near Tokyo.

The Pride of Detroit was forced back to Omura by a storm. The plane hopped off at Omura at 7:20 a. m. today (Japanese time).

Police investigated the landing at Omura for the reason that it is within a naval zone, where no authorized flying is permitted. It was expected, however, that the nature of the flight and the cause of the descent would serve to avoid a delay, which proved the case.

It is expected the fliers will resume the flight toward Tokyo as soon as weather and other conditions permit.

Friends of the fliers urge them not to attempt the flight beyond Tokyo, because of the difficulties to be encountered in flying over the Pacific, including the uncertainty of locating the Midway Islands and of making a suitable landing there.

Caught In Storm.

Tokyo, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Caught in a thunderstorm which prevented their seeing across Bungo Channel, a 20-mile strait separating the island of Kiushiu from the province of Shikoku, on the island of the same name, the Pride of Detroit, attempting a round-the-world flight, was forced to halt her scheduled Shanghai-to-Tokyo hop, and land at Omura naval airdome, near Nagasaki, at 5:45 p. m. today.

Dispatches received here from Omura stated that the police had begun investigation of the landing, because the fliers landed near the fortified zone.

The fliers landed at 5:45 p. m. about 100 miles from Kagoshima, which had reported them as passing over at 1:35 p. m. Their course from Kagoshima to Tokyo would have necessitated their flying northeast, but their maneuvering during the storm evidently swept them far off their course, for Nagasaki is slightly west of north from Kagoshima.

Could Not See.

In a statement to the press, Edward F. Schlee, Detroit oil man, said that it was while they were crossing the prefecture of Miyazaki the storm came up. He said that William S. Brock, the pilot, continued on the course until they approached the Bungo Channel, which connects the Japanese Inland Sea with the Pacific, when they discovered that the weather was so thick that they could not see the opposite shore.

Rather than attempt a blind passage, they determined to land at Tachiarai, but with their gasoline supply getting low from the struggle with the storm, they finally were obliged to find refuge at the naval airdrome.

J. V. Walker, Tokyo representative of the pair, and others have advised the aviators to refrain from attempting the flight across the Pacific. Consequently, it is believed the flight will end at Tokyo, although no indication to that effect has been made by the fliers.

Levine to Wait Year.

London, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Charles A. Levine admitted tonight that his transatlantic flight to America was abandoned for this year, but he added: "I will do it next year. I reckon I will have a more powerful plane built, probably a multi-engined seaplane."

Levine also contemplates a round-the-world trip next year. He declared that as the Atlantic flight is impossible at present he hoped to start in a few days on a record-breaking flight to the East.

Capt. Frank T. Courtney's projected Atlantic flight has been abandoned until next year, the Westminster Gazette announces. Courtney is at Corunna, Spain, where he landed, on his interrupted flight to America, and up to yesterday had declared his intention to complete the flight.

The Westminster Gazette, however, which sponsored the flight, sent him a message releasing him from any obligation to carry on and suggesting that this was in the best public and scientific interest.

Cranwell, England, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Capt. Hinchcliffe, pilot for Charles A. Levine, informed the Associated Press correspondent tonight that he had definitely decided to start eastward on an endurance flight September 14 or 15. His destination possibly was Karachi, India, or further, but details had not yet been settled.

Fonck Awaits Orders.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Capt. Rene Fonck today announced that he would seek the attitude of the French government before definitely abandoning his projected transatlantic flight.

3, Wanted After Maryland Attack, Found in Hospitals

Police Discover Two Youths and Man Suffering From Serious Injuries Received in Motor Crash Following Assault on Washington-Baltimore Road.

Two youths and a man, one being sought by Maryland authorities on a charge of reckless driving and the other two on charges of assault and battery, were found in local hospitals last night suffering from serious injuries received when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a telegraph pole at Fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Two of the three, Walter Simpson, 47 years old, and William E. Dodson, 19, both of 3312 New Hampshire avenue northwest, received fractured skulls and cuts. The third, Laurence Keegin, 19, of Hyattsville, Md., suffered a fractured left arm and cuts.

Warrants charging Simpson and Keegin with assaulting Robert Pennybacker, 18 years old, and Howard Pierson, 19, both of Berwyn, Md., and another warrant charging Dodson with reckless driving, were sworn out by E. S. Aldridge, chief of police at Riverdale, Md. Keegin was taken to jail in Riverdale last night, but Dodson and Simpson were placed under police guard at Sibley and Emergency hospitals, respectively.

Keegin told police that the automobile driven by Dodson, hit a telegraph pole on Rhode Island avenue, leaped the 'sidewal' and crashed into the loading platform at the Wilkins Co., millworking plant near Fourth street.

The injured men were extricated from the wrecked machine by a passing taxicab driver. Dodson and Simpson were unconscious. Dodson was taken to Sibley Hospital and Simpson and Keegin were treated at Emergency Hospital. Forty stitches were taken in Simpson's face, which was cut by flying glass.

Shortly before the accident the alleged assault on Pennybacker and Pierson is said to have taken place just outside of Riverdale on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

According to police, an automobile in which the three injured men were

G. F. MOORE, 79, FOUND; SPENDS 2 DAYS IN WOODS

Fellowship Forum President Stumbles Into Home of Darnstown Man.

PLANNED BALTIMORE TRIP.

George Fleming Moore, 79 years old, who disappeared Friday afternoon from the home of his son, Dr. Aldrich H. Moore, in Alta Vista, Md., was found last night in Darnstown, Md. Moore is president of the Fellowship Forum and a past grand commander of the supreme council of the Scottish Rite Masons of the Southern jurisdiction.

Moore stumbled into the home of Charles Curtis, situated in some woods on the dirt road between Darnstown and Potomac, Md., at 9 o'clock last night. Curtis telephoned the police in Rockville, who immediately responded to the call. Officer L. G. Claggett identified Moore.

Moore was in an extremely dazed condition. His clothes were slightly torn and he was very weary.

He told the police that he had wandered about for two days and nights, sleeping in the woods. When he left his home in Alta Vista, he stated, he came to Washington with the intention of going to Baltimore on business. In some way he got on the wrong train and when he got off he did not know where he was.

Charles B. Klopfer, 131 U street northeast, a taxicab driver, reported to police last night that he picked up Friday night at 9 o'clock in Silver

ORCHESTRA'S TRUCK HIT BY TRAIN; 2 DEAD

Ten Others Injured as Merry Band Is Struck at New Jersey Crossing.

Special to The Washington Post.

Albion, N. J., Sept. 11.—Thirteen men on a truck were plucking at their guitars and mandolins at the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad crossing here tonight as a passenger train whizzed by. They were members of a Philadelphia string orchestra and all in good spirits, after a week-end passed with the parents of two of the men near here.

"All right, let her go, Harry," some one called to the fourteenth man, Harry Ogden, at the wheel, as the red markers of the passenger train slid into the dark. The driver shifted his gears and the truck groaned up the incline.

A fast freight train jumped from behind the disappearing passenger train and struck the truck almost in the middle. Two of the men were killed and ten injured. Two of the injured are not expected to live.

The dead are Michael Larkin, 26, and Harry Monaghan, 23.

William Monaghan, 20, a brother of the dead man, and William Burns, 30, are not expected to live.

NEW RACE OF SUPERMEN PROMISED BY VORONOFF

Expert Asks Mothers for Children Endowed With Spark of Genius.

HOPES TO EXTEND LIFE

Budapest, Hungary, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Dr. Serge Voronoff, noted gland expert, had another surprise for the members of the zoological congress today. His first had been the announcement of greatly increased production of wool from sheep through the transplantation of glands. His second was contained in the statement:

"The mother who is the first to hand me her child for a rejuvenation operation perhaps would be the founder of a new and mighty human race."

"Give me children endowed with the spark of genius," said Dr. Voronoff, "and I will breed a new race of supermen."

The subject of rejuvenation, the expert continued, often was treated jocosely, but the problems were very serious. "We are laboring," he explained, "in order that giants of human genius shall not suddenly be exhausted when they reach a certain age, but shall be enabled to prolong their mental capacity for the good of mankind.

Between 50 and 0 is the best age for males to undergo rejuvenation, but females in this respect show greater wisdom, not waiting for the time when the constitution only reacts with difficulty on implanted glands."

Dr. Voronoff mentioned his experiments with aged rams, whose lives had been prolonged by the transplantation of glands from fourteen to twenty years, begetting at the latter age offspring weighing 20 per cent above normal and yielding 25 per cent more wool.

"We thus produce superanimals," he said. "We can and will produce a race of supermen."

Jesse James' Friends To Erect Monument

Kansas City, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A movement has been started to erect a monument to Jesse James, famous Missouri bandit, in Mount Olivet Cemetery at Kearney, Mo., it was announced today by John H. Newman, a lawyer here, and lifelong friend of Jesse James, jr. The younger James formerly was a lawyer here and now is in Los Angeles.

Friends of the James family, it is expected, will finance the proposed monument.

Seized Rum Meant For Dempsey Fight

Philadelphia, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A large portion of the cargo of liquor, valued at $2,000,000, which was seized aboard the steamer Bulko here last night was destined to go to Chicago for consumption during the Dempsey-Tunney fight, customs officials said tonight. They said this was revealed by one of the vessel's crew.

A check-up disclosed approximately 15,000 cases and 3,400 barrels of Scotch and rye whisky aboard.

CYCLE RACER HURT; THEN AUTO KILLS HIM

Side Car, Taking Man to Hospital, Is Struck by Machine.

Atlantic City, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Injured when thrown from a motorcycle at the start of the cycle races at Sea Isle City today, Fred Rudderow, of Camden, a racer, was instantly killed a few minutes later when an automobile crashed into the side-car motorcycle in which he was being taken to a hospital.

The collision caused Rudderow to catapult out of the side car, and his head struck the curbing.

In the first accident he also was thrown on his head when a rope with which he was being towed to the starting line got tangled in the front wheel of his motorcycle.

FEARING KIDNAPERS, POLICE SPEED HILL OVERLAND IN AUTO

Father Struggles With Sheriff and Is Held in Custody.

GUNMEN AWAIT TRAIN, OFFICERS ARE WARNED

Shotguns and Pistols Guard Youth as He Quits Car at Lacrosse, Wis.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lacrosse, Wis., Sept. 11.—While pistols and riot guns guarded against a rumored effort to kidnap his prisoner, Sheriff Floyd Clark, of Streator, returning from Seattle with Harry Hill, wanted for the murder of his mother in Streator, Ill., transferred his prisoner from the Oriental Limited here at noon today and started overland in an automobile for Ottawa, Ill.

Two other high powered cars, filled with heavily-armed deputies, escorted the car in which the sheriff and Hill rode.

Dr. H. C. Hill, father of the accused youth, was on the same train as the sheriff and his son. When he discovered that the boy was being taken from the train he also left the train and got into an altercation with Sheriff Walter Rice, of Lacrosse County, who was assisting the Streator authorities.

"Where are you taking my boy?" demanded Dr. Hill, getting in front of the automobile into which young Hill had just been passed by the sheriff. "What's this all about? I want to know where you are going with my boy."

Elder Hill Arrested.

Sheriff Rice, pistol in hand, attempted to shove Dr. Hill out of the way, but the father resisted stoutly and after a brief struggle was finally arrested by Rice for obstructing an officer. He was taken to central police station here and put into a cell while the Streator officials dashed out of town with the boy. After 4 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Hill was still in the police detention cell. At that time Sheriff Rice had not decided whether he would place a charge against him or turn him loose.

The transfer of young Hill from the coast train to automobile was dramatic, as the result of a tip from some unknown source to Lacrosse authorities that an effort would be made here to take the prisoner from Sheriff Clark. Ringed about by local police and the sheriff and deputies, Hill was hustled from the last car of the train the instant it stopped at Lacrosse, with a bodyguard of other local deputies, who

BOY CLINGS HALF HOUR TO TAIL OF AIRPLANE

Unable to Let Go at Start, Lad Says, Shooting Star Nearly Hit Him.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 11 (A.P.). Dangling 3,000 feet in the air, Vincent Taylor, 17, of Hackensack, was an involuntary passenger in an airmail plane tonight when he failed to let go of the plane's tail as it took off from Teterboro Field, Hasbrouck Heights, for Hadley airport, New Brunswick.

Taylor was a ground observer as L. London D'Arce prepared to take off. His motor racing, the pilot yelled to Taylor to wheel around the plane's tail to head the machine into the wind. With the tail free from the ground, the plane started across the field and Taylor was unable to free himself.

The plane soared with Taylor hanging on. Unable to climb astride the tail, he clung with one foot and one hand dangling in the air. When the plane landed at Hadley Airport, 25 minutes later, Taylor said he was not afraid except when a shooting star threatened to bowl him 3,000 feet to the ground.

Missing 5-Year Boy Dead in Old Ice-Box

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A search for 5-year-old Willie Weber, missing since Saturday, today resulted in finding his smothered body in an old ice box at his home.

The body was found in a sitting position in the lower compartment, knees drawn up under the chin and arms clasped about them. Neighborhood children are being questioned to learn if any of them shut him in the ice box.

Mounted Man Rescues Women Through Surf

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A mounted patrolman and his horse today were sharing the credit for a spectacular rescue in the surf off Manhattan Beach, in which seven women were brought ashore from a motorboat, stranded on a sand bar.

A party of nineteen, members of a church club, had chartered the powerboat for a "moonlight ride" last night. The craft was returning when it ran aground. Distress signals, sounded on the powerboat's siren, brought police to the beach and a marine patrol boat.

When it was apparent the patrol boat could not approach close enough to take the passengers off, Patrolman Howard McDonough, of the mounted division, spurred his horse through the surf, swam the animal alongside the boat and took one of the women passengers. Rider and horse made the trip to the boat and back to the beach seven times until all the women had been taken ashore. Men passengers were assisted to swim to safety.

DOCTOR DIVES HEADLONG TO DEATH FROM BALCONY

J. R. Atwell, Sanitarium Patient, Eludes Nurse and Plunges 20 Feet.

INQUEST PLANNED TODAY

Diving from the balcony in the rear of the Harriet Lane Sanitarium, 1654 Columbia road northwest, Dr. John R. Atwell, 53 years old, a patient said to be suffering from addiction to the use of narcotics, plunged to his death yesterday.

He dropped 20 feet, his head striking the cement paving under the balcony.

Dr. Atwell, who practiced in Wicomica Church, Va., had for some months been waging a battle to overcome the drug habit, and for several weeks had been undergoing treatment at the sanitarium, physicians at that institution said.

Arising about 5 a. m., Dr. Atwell, after pacing the floor for a few minutes, as was his habit, darted through the door of his second-floor room, eluding a nurse who attempted to restrain him, ran to the balcony and dived headlong over the rail. Dr. M. J. Simmons examined the man's body, which was removed to the operating room of the sanitarium in the hope that life still existed.

Later examination revealed a fractured skull and a broken leg, the latter injury believed to have been caused by the body striking a railing surrounding the areaway.

Dr. Simmons said Dr. Atwell had been a brilliant man. As a patient in the hospital he spent much of his time discussing medical practice with other doctors. The ambition of his life was to establish a small hospital in the little village where he practiced for many years. Lack of capital, it is said, prevented him from carrying out his project.

Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt will preside at an inquest at the morgue at 11:30 o'clock this morning. Dr. Atwell's body is held there pending receipt of instructions from Mrs. Lelah Atwell, his wife, who is at Wicomico Church.

2 BALLOONS DOWN IN SOUTH CAROLINA; 2 IN NORTH STATE

Fifth Gordon Bennett Entry Descends on Lake Erie Isle.

U. S. ARMY'S AIRSHIP REACHES YORK, S. C.

Search Organized for One Racer Believed to Have Fallen in Mountains.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Reporting a journey fraught with the dangers of thunderstorms, sudden ascents to great heights and telling of spending the night high above the clouds in bright moonlight, four of the fifteen entries in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race tonight had landed in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Several other balloons were reported over the Carolinas, with three still going strong when sighted.

The first three balloons to land in the South, the United States Army, the Paris-Bruxelles, French, and the Wallonie, Belgian, traveled approximately 525 miles from Detroit, from where they started late yesterday.

The Helvetia, Swiss entry, traveled about 450 miles.

The United States Army, piloted by Capt. W. E. Kepner, was the first reported landing, having come down in the outskirts of York, S. C., at 7 p. m., a few miles south of the North Carolina line. Capt. Kepner and his aid, Lieut. Earickson, told of being suddenly lifted to great heights by vertical air currents. They had dropped their radio set by means of a parachute at Lenoir, N. C., at 2:30 p. m., and landed only because an adverse air current caught them and was carrying them back toward Detroit.

Paris-Bruxelles Down.

The Paris-Bruxelles, piloted by M. Maurice Biennaime, with M. A. Veenstra as aid, landed near Dunn, N. C., a small town in the eastern section of the State, at 5:50 o'clock this afternoon, after exhausting their ballast.

The Wallonie, piloted by Lieut. Quersin, with M. Theis as aid, came down 6 miles south of Greenville, S. C., at 7:30 o'clock, with ballast exhausted.

The Helvetia, Swiss entry, Pilot Ernst Maag, landed 16 miles north of Statesville, N. C., at 6:15 p. m.

The Italian entry, Dux, and the Spanish entry, Hispana, known to have passed over North Carolina and into South Carolina, were still going strong and toward the south when last reported. The Dux was identified by an aviator who ascended at Spartanburg, S. C., to a height of 4,000 feet to get her markings. She was traveling at a height of approximately 6,000 feet, but later reports from Spartanburg indicated that the Dux had begun to de-

Developing of Arbitration Immediate Goal of League

Addresses by Briand, Chamberlain and Stresemann Have Given Organization Confidence, It Is Held; Disarmament Plans Pressed.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 11 (A.P.). The League of Nations is in the process of evolution, but is far from being on the verge of a mortal malady—such is the view prevailing among the delegates of nearly 50 nations foregathered for the eighth assembly of the league, which has just concluded one of the most impressive weeks in its history.

In the various delegations men were heard to say that the addresses of Gustav Stresemann, M Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain had given the league just what it wanted—the breath of confidence, and what M. Briand termed a profession of faith in its future serviceableness and greatness.

It was remarked often that even Sir Austen Chamberlain, who has been accused of coldness toward the league as possibly taking on the attributes of a superstate, in a frank speech telling of the international obligations Great Britain could and could not undertake, had committed his country to a policy which would be ever in consonance with league ideas and had declared his conviction that no country possibly could withstand any moral adverse judgment which the league delivered against its policies.

The opinion heard generally is that the development of arbitration as a means of settling disputes probably will form the main channel of the league's immediate evolution. This idea is based on what is regarded as the significant gesture of Germany in deciding to subscribe to the compulsory arbitration clause of the world court of justice, and M. Briand's much-remarked declaration that peace can best be maintained by adopting a policy of arbitration.

In addition, the British foreign secretary, whose country rejected the Geneva protocol, of which compulsory arbitration was one of the features, recalled to his hearers that Great Britain has accepted arbitration on more weighty problems than any other nation, thus giving the world to understand that Britain will continue this practice.

Another impression created in the minds of observers is that the league,

The only passenger seriously injured was Frank Dolinsky, 17 years old, of 3615 N street northwest. At Emergency Hospital physicians early this morning were in doubt as to the extent of his injuries.

TOWN IN LITHUANIA SEIZED BY REBELS

Insurgents Loot Bank and Free Pursuers Before They Are Defeated.

Riga, Latvia, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Describing an uprising at Taurage, Lithuania, on Friday, late dispatches from Kovno state that 60 men under former Capt. Maijus occupied the administrative buildings and the railway station, severing communications. The police were disarmed and the prisoners were released. The latter with other rowdy element joining Maijus' forces.

In the name of the committee for the salvation of Lithuania Capt. Maijus announced himself military commander of Taurage. The first intimation at the capital that anything was wrong came in a message from a telegraph operator at Taurage, which said simply "save us" and then broke off.

A military contingent arrived at Taurage that afternoon and a skirmish ensued, in which Col. Hess was killed and the insurgents suffered a number of casualties before they fled to the forest. Troops captured 20 of the insurgents, but Maijus escaped with $25,000 he had taken from a bank.

PRESIDENT ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON; BIG CROWD AT STATION

Cabinet Officials Greet Coolidges, Who Go to White House.

ENTHUSIASTIC THRONG ON HOMEWARD ROUTE

Executive, It Is Understood, Will Not Amplify Statement Bearing on 1928.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Coolidge returned to Washington at 10 o'clock last night after a triumphal trip through Pennsylvania and Maryland. There was a large crowd at the Union Station to greet him, including all the members of his cabinet in Washington.

He came back to find the Capital solicitous for some clarification of his famous "choose" announcement, but it can be stated rather definitely that he has absolutely no plan of doing so.

As he passed around the edges of the Blue Ridge Mountains, he read Washington news dispatches expressing the belief that he would be prevailed upon to make some further statement, but in fact, he does not think any amplification is necessary.

Pleased With Reception Here.

The President returned to Washington wearing a straw hat, apparently unmindful that the styles here are somewhat advanced over those in Rapid City. If he had any regrets at leaving the Black Hills—and he did—he was certainly warmed by the reception given him not only here but all along the last lap of his trip. On the outskirts of Pittsburgh, where the train stopped for a change of engines, several thousand people were gathered outside the fence surrounding the railroad yard and applauded him.

At Cumberland, Md., he was greeted by a band playing "Maryland, My Maryland," and while he suppressed any desire he might have had to cheer the members of his party did not.

The crowd applauded and cheered, and one man yelled "Hello, Cal."

Two large bouquets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Coolidge by the Republican State central committee of Allegany County, Nelson W. Russler, chairman, making the presentation.

Will Start Work Today.

The President, Mrs. Coolidge and John Coolidge went immediately to the White House upon their arrival. There the President plans to get down to work today. He wants to see Senator Curtis, majority Senate leader, either today or tomorrow, on the question of whether an extra session of the Senate should be called to dispose of the Smith and Vare election cases. Then will come his legislative program. Also he must appoint ambassadors to Cuba and Mexico and a governor general of the Philippine Islands.

But he plans to content himself with this work and not let the speculation still persisting over his "choose" announcement take up any of his time. In the first place, he does not consider there is really anybody here vitally concerned in the matter, who has any doubt as to what he meant.

Secretary of the Interior Work, Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania, Senators Jones of Washington, Fess of Ohio and Bingham of Connecticut, Dwight P. Morrow, one of the President's closest friends, and William V. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican national committee—all of these and others have talked with the President since he made his announcement. Senators Norbeck and McMaster, of South Dakota, were frequent visitors at the lodge.

Doubt Drafting Coolidge.

None of these, with the lone exception of Senator Fess, has expressed the belief that Mr. Coolidge would be drafted, and the attitude of the Ohio senator is believed to be for reasons of his own.

All have agreed that it leaves the "draft" door open, but none of them has suggested that the President had this in mind. All have emphasized belief in his sincerity.

In quarters that have been close to the summer White House little thought has been given to the question why Mr. Coolidge used the term "choose" instead of "will not." For the purposes of discussion as to what the President really will do in 1928 the two terms may as well be taken as synonymous.

If the Republican convention should go to the President on bended knee in 1928 and ask him to run, no one seriously believes he would refuse. To do so under such conditions, however, would almost rout his party. This would be his action whether he had said in his announcement "I will not run," just as much as it would with the "choose" term which he did use.

G. O. P. Has Other Availables.

But Mr. Coolidge does not expect to be drafted and he did not have this in mind when he issued his statement. It is pointed out in this connection that it would not speak very well for the Republican party if it had only one

LIEUT. VAN WINKLE WANTS TRAINED MEN AS POLICE GUARDS

Declares Policemen Are Not Fit to Handle Boys at Detention Home.

PAY INCREASE SOUGHT TO ATTRACT COMPETENT

$4,800 Savings Will Accrue if Another Class of Men Are Stationed There, She Says.

That college-trained civilians are being sought to replace police as guards at the House of Detention was revealed last night by Mrs. Nina Van Winkle, lieutenant in command of the Women's Bureau and director of the detention home.

In her annual report she will recommend that the matter be taken up with the Personnel Classification Board, with a view to getting an increase in the amount of salary which the board authorized for such employes two years ago. The salary was then fixed at a little over $1,000 a year with board and quarters, she said.

Mrs. Van Winkle will ask for a minimum salary of $1,500 with board and quarters, as she is unable to get competent persons for the positions who are willing to work the long hours required of them for any smaller sum.

The report will request a minimum of $1,800 for a superintendent, with board and quarters.

"Policemen are not educated for the work of handling young boys, and they do not like being assigned here," Mrs. Van Winkle said. "I want young men trained in social service and child welfare work. They must also be scholars and able to instruct the boy inmates in athletics. The average policeman is not fitted for the task."

"Aside from the benefits which will accrue to the detention home from this plan it will result in appreciable saving in the amount of salaries paid for the work," Mrs. Van Winkle stated. "About $6,300 is now paid annually to three policemen detailed here from the precincts." Under the plan I am about to present this work can be done by one civilian who will live in the house. This will result in a saving of $4,800. Besides the police are needed for street duty," she explained.

Mrs. Van Winkle has been instrumental in sending several policemen to George Washington University for training in welfare work, she said last night. Some of them derived benefit from the instruction course she said, but others dropped it in the early stages.

Large Crowds Attend Drew Camp Meeting

Evangelistic services conducted yesterday by Dr. S. P. W. Drew, beginning a ten-day old-fashioned "camp meeting" on the boys' school ground, Alexandria, Va., were attended by large crowds interested in subjects discussed by the minister and in the proposal for the holding of a convention and barbecue at that location, to culminate in an Emancipation Day celebration on September 22.

Some of the subjects which Dr. Drew has announced for the week's program include "Dead Dog After a Flea," "Black Diamond Express to Hell," "This Thing Was Not Done in a Corner," and "Women Clothed With the Sun."

Rain Forces Airplane To Land on Highway

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—Flying to his home at Ocean, near here, Patrick N. Hughes was forced down in a plane piloted by Capt. Jack Evans, of Bridgeport, Ohio, on the National Highway at Keysers Ridge, west of Grantsville yesterday. The men took a straight drop of 300 feet in an air pocket before the plane was righted.

They were forced to land because of the rain and dense fog and jockeyed half an hour for a landing, flying several hundred feet above the ground before they found a safe spot, which happened to be on the highest point in Maryland. Their destination was Frostburg. Mr. Hughes had been visiting his brother, T. R. Hughes, Bridgeport, Ohio.

Boat and Rum Held After Running Fight

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—After a chase, during which the Government boat opened fire on the fleeing craft, the big motor boat Dart was captured 15 miles off Cape Henry last night by the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-233 and brought into port today along with 150 cases of whisky and seven men found aboard her. The boat is being held as a rum runner and the members of the crew are under arrest.

The Dart was first sighted near Cape Henry, and according to Coast Guard officials apparently was attempting to enter the Virginia Capes. The CG-233 and the Manning at the time were attempting to aid the stranded Italian steamer Fidelitas, just inside the mouth of Chesapeake Bay. When those on the Dart sighted the Coast Guard boats, they turned and headed for the open sea.

Boy, Seeking Indians, Returned to Home

Inspired with the adventurous urge at a wild West moving picture show, 9-year-old Eugene Greet, of 223 Fourteenth street southeast, wandered abroad last night in his brand new cowboy suit, in search of "Indians and bulls."

As midnight approached and the Indians failed to materialize, Eugene grew weary. He decided to put his adventuring off till another day, and so informed proprietors of the Carlton garage, where he sought to spend the night. Authorities were notified, and Policeman W. W. Whittemore, of the Second Precinct escorted Eugene to his home.

Elimination of Grade Crossing to Be Asked

According to Thomas J. Luckett, mayor of Capitol Heights, and president of the newly organized Eighteenth District Citizens' Federation, that organization soon will call upon the State Roads Commission to take steps to eliminate the grade crossing of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railway at Seat Pleasant.

It is contended that this crossing, which is used by many coming to Washington, is dangerous.

GULF REFINING COMPANY ACQUIRES COLUMBIA OIL

Plant in Rosslyn to Receive Many Motor Tank Trucks for Fuel Distribution.

C. W. HEALEY IN CHARGE

Announcement is made by the Gulf Refining Company, largest producers of crude petroleum in the United States, of the acquirement of the Columbia Oil Company, whose plant is located in Rosslyn, Va., but which distributes gasoline, kerosene and lubricating oils in Washington and adjacent territory.

C. W. Healey is to be in charge of the Washington office of the Gulf company, which comes under the supervision of the Philadelphia district, of which R. E. Garrett is sales manager. With their entrance into Washington, the company will now have 27 States in which Gulf products, Good Gulf Gasoline, No-Nox motor fuel and Supreme Motor Oil will be distributed, comprising the entire eastern seaboard of the Atlantic Coast, the Middle Atlantic States, and the South as far as Texas.

With over 600 motor tank trucks operating through the Philadelphia district, many of which will be put in service in Washington to serve this territory, it is the plan of the company to give complete coverage throughout this section of the country, not only through their own filling stations, but those of independent dealers as well.

The Columbia Oil Company, which the Gulf company succeeds, is the oldest oil company in Washington, having been organized 25 years ago to handle lubricating oils and kerosene. As the demand for gasoline grew with the advent of the automobile, it naturally began the handling of this product. Robert G. Worthington, president of the Columbia Oil Company, will become affiliated with the Gulf Refining Company.

5 BALLOONS DESCEND, 2 IN SOUTH CAROLINA

scend and the last report was that she was within 1,000 feet of the ground.

The Hispana passed oved Gaffney, S. C., at 6 p. m., traveling in the general direction of Charleston at a height of 4,000 feet.

The Belgica, another Belgian entry, probably is somewhere over eastern South Carolina. She passed over Charlotte this afternoon and was last reported from Monroe, traveling in a southeasterly direction and at a great height.

At least one other unidentified balloon is believed to be over the State, this bag having been reported passing over Boone, N. C., high in the mountains, late this afternoon.

Searching parties tonight were combing the mountains between Chimney Rock and Tryon, N. C., looking for a balloon that passed over Chimney Rock this afternoon, just above the tree tops, in the belief that this bag may have landed in some inaccessible place. It was thought here, however, that this may have been one of the bags that were reported as passing over Spartanburg, Gaffney and Greenville, S. C., at various times.

Sandusky, Ohio, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—With its gas valves jammed and refusing to function, the German balloon Brandenburg, which left Detroit yesterday in the Gordon-Bennett cup race, landed last night on the tiny Sugar Island, 21 miles out in Lake Erie. The bag was piloted by Dr. Reinbold Halben and Hugo Kaulen, jr. They passed the night in a cottage on the island.

Heading to Florida.

Detroit, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The annual international Gordon-Bennett trophy race, which got under way here at 4 p. m. Saturday, tonight apparently had developed into a nip-and-tuck race between a number of unidentified balloons reported to being wafted toward the Florida coast.

Under masterly piloting through variable winds with a general southeasterly trend the bags were reported passing over the Carolinas and converging toward the tip of the Florida coast, which goal, if attained, would represent the maximum distance possible from Detroit under prevailing weather trends. The furthermost tip of the Florida coast is approximately 1,180 miles by airline from the starting point here, a distance which has been surpassed only once in the sixteen years of the event.

In 1913 M. Biennaime, French balloonist, piloted a bag from Stuttgart to Moscow, a distance of 1,356 miles, a world's record, which still stands.

The progress of the unidentified balloons last reported over the Carolinas and believed to include the Dux, Italian entry, piloted by Col. Domenico Leone and Lieut. Col. Ledori, was commented on as a marvelous exhibition of piloting by race officials here tonight, in view of the recalcitrant weather conditions.

It is reported that the Belgica, piloted by Ernest de Muyter and Dr. George LeGallee, also was in the group over the Carolinas. De Muyter won the event in 1920, when it was held at Birmingham, taking his balloon from the Alabama city to Burlington, Vt., a distance of 1,098 miles.

Woman Cut by Razor; Husband Is Accused

Mrs. Pauline Parker, 43 years old, 1347 L street southeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday for razor cuts on both hands. Police say the razor was wielded by her husband, Louis Parker, 47, of the same address.

The husband was arrested by police of the Fifth Precinct and locked up on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Student at Norfolk Breaks Neck in Dive

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Seldon Guy Combs, 17, of Columbia, N. C., a student of Norfolk College, suffered a broken neck while in bathing at Ocean View this afternoon, the result of a dive into shallow water. Tonight the boy was in a local hospital with chances of recovery against him.

Friends saw the youth dive and then come to the surface fighting for life. They got him ashore and to the hospital where an X-ray showed a dislocation and fracture of the vertebrae. Dr. H. J. Combs, of Elizabeth City, N. C., and Dr. J. J. Combs, of Pennsylvania, cousins of the boy, were called here to attend him.

The dispatches quote Alfaro Siqueiros, who headed the miners' strike, as announcing that work will be resumed throughout the district.

The strike led to diplomatic representations, it being feared that foreign mine employes would be endangered.

MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS; HIT-RUN AUTOIST SOUGHT

Churchgoer, Bound for Home, Discovers Matthew Ash Under Viaduct.

SKULL WAS FRACTURED

Believed to be the victim of a hit-and-run driver, Matthew Ash, 58 years old, of 1005 Third street northeast, was found unconscious yesterday under the railroad viaduct across H street northeast.

Ash was taken to Casualty Hospital by Thomas McGraw, of 839 Fourth street northwest, who found him as he passed under the viaduct on his way home from church.

He told police he found Ash lying face downward at the side of the street in a position indicating he had been struck by a vehicle. His attention first was called to the man, he said, by a colored youth who later disappeared.

At Casualty Hospital Ash was found to have a fractured skull. For several hours he lay at the hospital unidentified until police, working with a receipt found in his pocket as a clew, located his wife. Ash later regained consciousness.

Five Die When Crack Train Hits Motor Car

Summit, Mo., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Five lives were lost when the Sunshine Special, crack train of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, crashed into a small sedan at a grade crossing here today.

The dead are John Burlbaw, 37, miner; his wife, two children and Burlbaw's mother, Mrs. Ellen Bloodsaw. The train was traveling about 50 miles an hour, and could not be stopped until it had overrun the scene of the accident a quarter of a mile.

STRIFE IN G.O.P., SAYS SENATOR HARRISON

Mellon, in Dictating Nominee, Will Pick Coolidge, He Declares.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, yesterday leveled his guns, loaded with vitriol, at Republicans in general and at President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in particular. In a typically Harrisonian statement he declared "the same old fight within the Republican party is being waged between big business and progressive forces."

"Heretofore," according to the senator's statement, "special interests have moved under cover. Now they defiantly parade in the open, disrobed and unmasked. Their leaders make bold the statement that Andy Mellon will dominate the Republican convention and dictate its nominee."

Pointing out that Secretary Mellon has been the recipient of "numerous favors" from President Coolidge, Senator Harrison comes to the conclusion that Mr. Mellon in his dictation of the nominee undoubtedly will pick Mr. Coolidge to succeed himself.

G. F. MOORE FOUND; WAS LOST IN WOODS

Spring, Md., a man fitting the description of Mr. Moore and took him about a mile north of Rockville. Dr. Moore was confident last night that the passenger in the taxi was his father and believed that his father was wandering in the vicinity of Rockville, a victim of amnesia.

According to Klopfer, the missing man hailed his taxi at Silver Spring and requested that he be taken to Alta Vista. Upon arriving at Alta Vista, Moore told the cabman to drive on, that he was not in Alta Vista. Whereupon Klopfer proceeded to Rockville. There Moore still insisted that he had not reached his destination, and the driver continued for about a mile north of Rockville, where he refused to go any farther. Moore, he stated, got out and he drove back to town.

Moore disappeared from his home about 3:30 Friday afternoon, refusing to permit his chauffeur to drive him to town. Later he was seen by a friend of the family, Dr. M. L. Hunter, of Berwyn, Md., in the Union Station here.

Dr. Hunter said that he passed within four feet of Mr. Moore, but did not speak to him because he seemed intently occupied. Moore continued on toward the gate to No. 10 track, the doctor stated. Here all clews to further movements vanished.

From the first relatives feared that he was suffering from amnesia, having had a similar attack last May. They thought is possible at first that he had gone to Montgomery, Ala., his birthplace, but they were advised by telegram that he had not. They also checked up on the probability of his having gone to Denver, Colo., where a Masonic convention will be held this month.

LOWMAN DEFENDED BY LEAGUE OFFICIAL

Assistant Secretary Declared Right in Controversy Over Gov. Smith.

New York State Antisaloon League officials have taken up their cudgels in defense of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, whose recent attack on Gov. Al Smith aroused leaders to protest to Secretary Mellon against the dry chief's interference in New York local politics.

In a letter to Secretary Mellon made public yesterday, Orville S. Poland, head of the New York League's legal department, declared Lowman "is right in the present controversy." Lowman fell out with the league almost immediately after his appointment, when he removed Maj. Mills as a result of disclosures that bootlegger suspects were beaten and tortured to compel confessions.

"Mr. Lowman's obligation is to enforce the law in the 48 States of the Union—not 47," said Poland in his letter.

"The official acts of the Governor of New York State are not sacrosanct. When he used his influence in behalf of the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law and when he signed that repeal, Gov. Smith did his official best to make New York a paradise for the bootleggers of America. It does not now lie in his mouth, nor that of his Tammany spokesman, to complain when a high government official criticizes acts of an official obstructionist and nullificationist."

SEA SCOUTS' CRAFT, DAMAGED BY GALES IN ARCTIC, SURVIVES

Women Also Aboard Schooner Northern Light on Cruise Into Far North.

SOVIET AGENTS BLOCK TRADING WITH NATIVES

70-Mile Wind and 40-Foot Waves Sweep Away the Deck Rigging.

San Francisco, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Eight Chicago sea scouts told thrilling tales of four-and-a-half months' cruise in the Arctic when the auxiliary schooner Northern Light returned here today. The scouts, all youths under 21, were recruited for the trip by John Borden, wealthy Chicagoan, owner and master of the Northern Light.

The scouts recounted their experiences when 70-mile-an-hour gales buffeted the ship and 40-foot waves swept away the deck rigging. Four days out of five brought inclement weather, the boys said. They told of hunting kodiak bears on the Alaskan Peninsula, as easy marks for their guns, and how polar bears off Wrangel Island eluded their pursuit.

The scouts said the Northern Light cautiously approached Point Serdze on the Siberian coast because Russian agents kept the vessel under close surveillance ready to seize it should there be any trading with the natives.

Ready for Another Trip.

Declaring the trip brought the adventure of their lives, the youths said they were ready to take another trip into the land of the midnight sun.

The Northern Light brought back the skins of 11 kodiak bears, 8 polar bears, 15 walrus, one oogrook whiskered seal, and 135 birds for the Field Museum of Chicago.

The vessel went from here to Victoria, B. C., thence through the inside passage to Juneau and around to the Schumagin Islands, Unga and Squaw Harbor.

Guests of the vessel were Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Slaughter and Mrs. Borden, all of Chicago, and Miss Frances Ames, of San Francisco. The Goodspeeds disembarked at Nome, Alaska.

The Northern Light caught the S O S call sent out by the fur ship Charles Brower, July 6, when it struck a reef on the southern end of St. Lawrence Island, southwest of the Seward Peninsula. The exploring ship raced at full speed through a black, foggy night and heavy seas to the rescue, directed by radio compass "and good fortune."

The Charles Brower managed to pull herself off the reef just as the Northern Light hove into sight, leaving part of her keel on the rocks, however.

The women, as well as the men, participated in the hunting trips, and all members of Borden's party got their quota of Kodiak bear. Miss Ames was credited with "potting" a Polar bear.

Six times the Northern Light crossed the Arctic Circle on its trips between the Siberian and North American shores and because of bad weather. The bad weather forced Borden to seek the lee of Point Hope, above the 68th latitude, several times.

The vessel will remain here for remodeling for a trip to Hawaii in the near future.

UPPER CLASSES DECLARED DISAPPEARING IN AMERICA

Freedom of Divorces One of Causes, Dr. E. Huntington Declares.

CONDITION IS 'DANGEROUS'

New Haven, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—"The upper classes are rapidly dying out and the lower classes rapidly increasing," in the United States, Dr. Ellsworth Huntington, research assistant at Yale University, says in an article of the October Yale Review entitled "Our Biological Future."

"In the past at many periods the upper classes have had at least as high a birth rate as the lower classes, and a lower death rate," he says. "Hence they have increased more rapidly than the lower classes. This appears to be the only healthful state of society."

"Today the reverse is true. Economic pressure, industrialism, cities, freedom from class distinctions, freedom of divorce, the improvement of public health, the growing desire for self-expression, the cult of feminism, birth control and various other factors have combined to cause a reversal of the old conditions."

Dr. Huntington takes issue with those who hold that such a condition is not dangerous "because the growth of modern industry demands a constantly increasing percentage of people who are little more than machines." The difficulty experienced by employers in filling positions "near the top" and the increased efficiency measures invented when immigration restriction stopped the importation of "cheap labor" indicate to Dr. Huntington that "what we need is not more brawn, but more brains."

"The data as to children in 'Who's Who' indicate," he asserts, "that people who rise from the lower to the upper classes are biologically less vigorous than are those of the same type who were born in the upper classes. So few are their children that they by no means reproduce themselves.

"Although the economic factor in undoubtedly highly important in determining the size of families, it by no means fully explains the facts as to the people in 'Who's Who.' There must apparently be some deeper subjective or temperamental reason why the highest development of literary, artistic, musical and dramatic ability tends toward extermination."

AMERICAN FIRMS IN FRANCE WORRY LESS OVER TARIFF

Official Statements Partially Assure Importers of Suspended Rates.

MONEY IS PLENTIFUL ON THE PARIS BOURSE

International Wagons Lits Shares Rise Sharply During the Week.

Paris, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Importers of American goods, who were greatly worried by the first announcements of higher duties on many classes of manufactured articles have been somewhat reassured by indications that the higher duties probably will be suspended until further detailed negotiations. Various American companies doing business in France and manufacturing here, such as the International Harvester Co., the American Radiator Co., and International Telephone & Telegraph Co., would not be affected on goods produced locally.

The government has decided to permit sugar imports beginning October 1. Foreign sugar has been barred since 1919.

The Bank of France, now regarded as the master of French exchange, has been resisting the tendency in France to advance the franc beyond the rate of 25.51 to the dollar by small stabilization sales of a few hundred thousand dollars some days, but the bank still is adding to its accumulation of foreign exchange and monies chiefly by taking offers of French balances aboard.

Carry-Over Rate Low.

Money has accumulated in such quantities that first-class bankers' acceptances sell at 1⅞, 2 and 2¼. The carry-over rate of brokers on the floor of the bourse among themselves yesterday was 1¾, while the rates on the curb were 4 to 5, in contrast to 5 and 8½ last January. Floor brokers, of whom only 70 have mutual responsibility and obligations, are reported jointly to have funds amounting to 250,000,000 francs. Of this total 210,000,000 francs must be deposited with the government. The Paris money market never was so plethoric. The principal causes are the Bank of France having bought foreign balances held by French houses, paying in francs; the repayment by the treasury of considerable quantities of short-term obligations and general listlessness in the investment market.

The bourse, which has been inactive for months, showed signs of life during the latter half of the week and brokers are beginning to hope for better business.

Unemployment Declines.

International Wagons Lits shares, which have been the most lively speculative stock on the Paris bourse, rose during the week from 1,180 to 1,335, making the rise in six months from 850. One reason frequently given this week is the likelihood of the shares being admitted to trading on the New York Stock Exchange

Unemployment in France, which was 81,916 last March, the highest since 1921, declined, according to official figures up to September 3 to 14,718 for all France, including both sexes. The largest number of idle were manual labor, 3,247; metal industries, 2,108; wood workers, 806; textiles, 419.

SCHOOL IS BOYCOTTED BY "UNION" PUPILS

Refuse to Attend So Long as Children of Nonunion Men Are There.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—More than 100 children of striking union coal miners have themselves gone on strike by refusing to attend Sunnyside School at Gallatin because children of nonunion miners are present. School authorities have warned the parents that unless the pupils are present for classes tomorrow they will take legal action, under the compulsory attendance law.

The trouble started last Tuesday when State police were summoned to Gallatin to protect the children of nonunion miners who, officers of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., complained, were being stoned and driven away from the school by union sympathizers, including boys and girls.

The troopers restored order. When Sunnyside teachers prepared for the day's work on Friday, they found only the children of nonunion miners present. They learned the union men had ordered their children away from school as long as the others were present.

Mayor and Woman Hurt; Auto Ditched

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Mayor George Slingerland, of Mechanicsville, and his secretary, Miss Alphea Connolly, were injured today while driving near the head of the Atlanta motorcade, on the Saratoga Springs-Schuylerville highway.

The car, carrying the mayor and driven by Miss Connolly, was in collision with a car driven by another woman. Both cars overturned into a ditch. The woman who was driving the second car was unhurt.

Mayor Slingerland suffered a broken rib and his secretary a fractured collarbone and cuts.

Children Starving, Ohio Miners Report

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Claiming 2,000 children of the Hocking Valley mining district are dying because of lack of nourishment, a committee of miners and business men from Glouster, Ohio, called at the governor's office to request Gov. Donahey to issue a proclamation asking for financial assistance from the citizens of the State.

The governor is at his summer home, but the men were assured he would receive a committee of representatives of Athens, Hocking and part of Hocking County, Tuesday.

FIRM LABOR STAND AGAINST SOVIET AIDS LONDON EXCHANGE

Optimism of Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland Also Helps Many Stocks.

4½ PER CENT TREASURY BOND ISSUE IS SURPRISE

Flurry in Cotton Is Termed Work of Liverpool-New York Band.

London, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—British labor's declaration of freedom from Moscow influence through the action of the Edinburgh Trade Union Congress was reflected immediately on the stock exchange, where a greater feeling of security caused an advance in many industrials.

Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, minister of labor, reinforced this improved situation through a message to the Industrial Welfare Society of Oxford, in which he said:

"The revival of trade witnessed since the coal dispute was ended is phenomenal. The country emerged from the industrial struggle last year battered and bruised, but with more vitality left than many dared to hope."

Confident of Future.

Sir Max Muspratt, former president of the Federation of British Industries and director of Imperial Chemicals, also has issued an optimistic statement supporting the recent utterances of Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer.

He is confident of Great Britain's future and says that trade revival will be spurred greatly by reorganizations now going on in the coal, iron and textile industries. Investors, he says, have shown their faith by purchasing to the amount of £197,000,000 new capital stock issued and already floated this year.

The recent announcement of a rebate to purchasers who buy only British steel meets with the approval of shipbuilders, but has raised many questions as to how far reaching the rebate will be and whether it will be confined to steel manufactured entirely in Great Britain from the furnace to the finished product or extended to finished products made in Great Britain from foreign billets.

Modernization Is Demanded.

Some critics of the scheme declare that the steel industry can be helped only by modernization of the plants and complete readjustment of wages and working hours to meet continental competition.

The government sprung two surprises on financial London last week by announcing the issue of an unlimited sum in treasury bonds at 4½ per cent for current expenses, and an early scheme for the conversion of the 3½ per cent war loan and the 5 per cent and 4 per cent national war bonds totaling £223,000,000 into a 3½ per cent conversion loan.

The conversion scheme had been delayed by France's withdrawing gold from London earlier in the year. Although Argentina is absorbing much gold at present, bankers believe that the monetary situation will not be disturbed, because of the collaboration of London and New York central institutions, which also includes measures for financing seasonable purchases of grain and cotton whereby American exchange is likely to be kept steady.

International Band Blamed.

Sir Charles Macara, Manchester master spinner, in discussing the flurry in the cotton market, declares that an international gang of operators is at work in Liverpool and New York increasing the cost of American cotton, and thereby also of all other cotton, in defiance of the laws of supply and demand.

In a statement in the Sunday Express he says:

"The effect is even more serious than the recapitalization bubble, which is still crowding the northern bankruptcy courts with failures, affecting thousands of persons.

"Manipulators have increased the price of the world's cotton £12 per bale within nine months. On the average world crop this means £300,000,000.

Man, Burned on Ship, Starts $50,000 Suit

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Nicholas Nowell, former seaman on the British steamer Emperor of Montreal, has instituted libel proceedings in Federal Court here against that ship, seeking $50,000 for burns he alleged he suffered on the ship last year. Nowell alleges he was burned when he was sent into the storeroom to get a quantity of turpentine. The electric lights were out of order, he alleges, and he carried a lighted oil lantern, from which the turpentine caught fire and burned him so badly he suffered the loss of his right leg and now is unable to work.

POLICE, FEARING PLOT, SPEED HILL AWAY

had boarded the train at North Lacrosse.

Sheriff Rice rushed Hill and the Streator sheriff, who was handcuffed to the boy, into the doorway of a building across the track, through a cellar into the alley behind and when the crowd pressed close thrust Hill and the sheriff into the door of a small dwelling house and mounted his deputies outside. Within a few minutes a big car, sent by the Ottawa authorities, drove up to the house and still under guard, Hill and the sheriff were placed in the automobile. Just at this heavy juncture Dr. Hill, who had been delayed getting off the train, rushed up and attempted to block the departure of the car.

The change in plans which brought about the transfer to automobiles at Lacrosse was decided upon after it was learned that Dr. Hill had got wind of the original plan of the authorities to take his son off the train at Aurora to prevent service of a writ of habeas corpus reported issued at Chicago.

Gunmen Declared Waiting.

Dr Hill wired his attorney en route and when the officers discovered that the defense lawyer would also be on hand at Aurora they arranged with District Attorney Hanson to meet the train in Wisconsin and finish the trip by car, taking a carefully concealed route into Illinois.

Just what alarmed the local authorities and caused them to take such elaborate precautions against an effort to kidnap the prisoner was uncertain. It was reported at Lacrosse that two powerful cars, with Chicago licenses, full of gunmen drove into the city early this morning and members of the party, according to the rumor, were said to have dropped hints about taking Hill from the sheriff.

Young Hill seemed amused by the warlike display of armament as he was rushed from the train and he grinned as he was thrust into the heavily guarded automobile waiting the arrival of the sheriff's car.

Will Rogers Says All the Democrats "Choose" to Run

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 11.—The trouble with the Democrats is that they all want to run for President. If they had somebody on their side that would announce he didn't choose to run, why, he would be such a big novelty that he would be nominated by acclamation.

BOYS TRAINED IN MURDER BY SANDINO, SAYS MINER

Ruined by Rebel, American Owner Quits His Workings in Nicaragua.

CALLS PLANT WRECKED

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 11 (A.P.). Charles E. Butters, owner of the San Albino mine, which virtually has been ruined by the rebel general, Sandino, has returned here from Ocotal in a Marine airplane.

As long as Sandino worked the mine by force of arms extracting gold to pay his soldiers and buy provisions, the mine was in fair condition, but when he departed he and his followers carried off or destroyed everything worth while. American and native employes, Mr. Butters said, have left the region, which is absolutely unsafe.

Sandino and his forces have retreated to the mountains, which are almost inaccessible. He has plenty of horses, provisions and ammunition, and, according to Butters, is prepared to harass the Marines and constabulary at any opportune moment.

Sandino is described by the mine owner as a desperado, cruel and very forcible. He has trained four boys from 14 to 16 years of age, Mr. Butters says, to act as his bodyguard and kill at his command. These boys are pictured as absolutely cold blooded, "thinking no more of shooting a man than cracking a mule with a whip."

"I dare not return," said Butters, "as Sandino and his followers believe I am responsible for the presence of the marines, who have curtailed their activities. I am practically ruined financially, as under present conditions in Nicaragua I can not obtain capital to rehabilitate my mine."

Butters intends to present a claim for damages to the State Department and he is leaving soon for the United States. The marine command offered to station 40 marines at the mine, but Butters said it was too late, as the damage has been done. He praised the marines for their stand in the Ocotal battle, for every one in that region believed they would be annihilated.

Sartain's Clemency Request Is Rejected

Atlanta, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Atlanta Constitution says that Albert E. Sartain, former warden of the Atlanta Federal penitentiary but now an inmate of the institution, following his conviction of conspiracy to sell "soft" jobs to inmates, applied for executive clemency at the meeting of the Federal Parole Board that adjourned last Thursday although his papers were incomplete and action was deferred.

The Constitution also says that the application for clemency of Lawrence "Heinie" Rhiel, deputy warden under Sartain who also is serving a term in the prison was rejected.

Sartain must wait until the next meeting of the parole board before renewing action for his release, the paper says.

ARBITRATION IS GOAL PURSUED AT GENEVA

while legally an association of governments, is really an organization of world peoples, and that public opinion which holds the league as a sacred, inviolate instrument of peace, never will allow their rulers to abandon the league. M. Briand, whose addresses of hope and faith are regarded as confirming his place as one of the greatest of international figures, has, it is believed, done much to prove that public opinion is growing in force and will not allow the league to decline.

The assembly commissions will, beginning tomorrow, take up in detail the problems of disarmament and arbitration, and later recommend resolutions. Present indications are that disarmament plans will be vigorously pushed on, with the United States collaborating in an eventful league preliminary conference.

MacDonald Regrets Talk.

London, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Ramsay MacDonald, labor leader in the House of Commons, in a statement published by the Daily Herald, labor organ, characterizes Sir Austen Chamberlain's speech at Geneva as "most unfortunate and calculated considerably to add to British difficulties in Europe."

"During the past three years," he says, "we have become more and more isolated, and the smaller nations in particular have gratuitously thrown away our position in Europe and I regret most profoundly the Chamberlain viewpoint."

MOORE-VARE FIGHT BRINGS OUT RECORD VOTE REGISTRATION

Philadelphia Mayoralty Race Likely to Affect the 1928 Presidential Fight.

CONTROL OF DELEGATES AN IMPORTANT FACTOR

Effort to Smash Organization in City G. O. P. Is Led by Former Executive.

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Sept. 11. — Some early skirmishing of the 1928 presidential contest is taking place in connection with the Philadelphia mayoralty election which will be held in November.

Just now the city is in the throes of the primary election canvass. The principal candidates for the Republican nomination for mayor are Harry A. Mackey, who is backed by the regular Republican organization headed by Senator-elect William S. Vare, and former Mayor J. Hampton Moore, who is leading a movement of independent Republicans to smash the organization. As Philadelphia is overwhelmingly Republican, the election of a Democratic mayor is a remote contingency, and interest, therefore, centers in the Republican nomination fight.

If Moore and his following should succeed in defeating the organization slate they would be in a position to make considerable trouble for the Vare organization in the election of delegates to the Republican national convention next year. With Moore in office the pick of the patronage would go to the antiVare faction and naturally would be employed to aid the election of delegates to the national convention whom Vare could not deliver.

Registration Sets Record.

This is one of the considerations involved in one of the most desperate intra-party struggles in the City of Brotherly Love. A record breaking registration of voters was completed last night, with each side putting forth prodigious efforts to get all its partisans on the rolls. Moore interprets the unprecedented registration as convincing evidence of a popular uprising against Vare's domination while Mackey says it is merely the result of orders to the organization workers to get out a record of enrollment.

Mackey was the manager of Vare's candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States senator last year and testified before the Reed investigating committee regarding the expenditure of $1,000,000 for the Vare slate of candidates in the primary.

The Vare candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff is Thomas W. Cunningham, who contributed large amounts to finance the Vare ticket in 1926, but refused to tell the Reed committee the sources of the funds and was cited by the inquisitors for contempt of the Senate.

Penalty is Before Senate.

When the new Congress meets in December, the Senate will have before it not only the question of excluding Vare because of excessive campaign expenditures and alleged corrupt practices, but the question of punishing Cunningham for contempt. Moore has been hammering away at this aspect of the situation and its possible effect in the presidential contest.

"I do not believe," said Moore, "that Republicans generally understand what it means to go along further with existing organization methods. Does Mr. Mackey realize what the effect of his election as mayor would be upon the Republican party outside of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania? Since Mr. Cunningham is on the organization slate with Mr. Mackey and since the slate contemplates the displacement of District Attorney Fox, does it not forecast a reopening before the Reed investigating committee or the committee on privileges and elections of the whole money-orgy story of the primaries and general election of 1926—and this in the teeth of a presidential campaign?"

"If this is to be the effect of the candidacy of Messrs. Mackey and Cunningham and the city and State must again be discredited before the Nation, would it not be better for the Republican party generally if the organization candidates were to pull out or be defeated?"

Mellons Backing Vare.

The Mellons, who share with Vare the domination of the Republican party in Pennsylvania are aiding the Philadelphia boss to nominate Mackey. The Vare slate has been indorsed by W. L. Mellon, nephew of Secretary Mellon and chairman of the Republican State committee. The Mellons need Vare's help to renominate Senator David Reed next year and to control the Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican national convention, and Vare needs all the influence that Reed and the Mellons can exert to get him seated when the Senate meets—a perfect example of a political mutual aid society.

As to presidential candidates, sentiment in this end of the State appears nebulous. Among business men Hoover is strong. A good deal of comment favorable to Speaker Longworth is heard. Some leaders think that if Longworth were to announce himself as a candidate for President on a platform demanding modification of the Volstead act, he could capture the bulk of the Pennsylvania delegation, as Vare carried the State on a beer-and-light-wine platform.

41 CHARGES PLACED AGAINST THE "CAT"

Chicago's Stealthy Robber May Face 4 More; Wife Called Accessory.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—William Eddie Baker, the "Cat" robber, or William Mitchell, as he was known here, has been charged with 23 robberies, 16 burglaries and 2 attempted robberies.

Charges of assault upon at least two of his victims may be filed against Baker.

Mrs. Baker, said to be the daughter of a St. Louis physician, was booked as an accessory after the fact. She was released on bond.

Baker, first regarded as the son of a "prominent Southern family" and a former St. Louis football player, now is said to be the son of Clifford Baker, of Cleveland. Now it seems, according to Baker's latest story, the "Cat" attended Center College, Danville, Ky., and knew members of the famous "Praying Colonels" Football Team. Baker said he enlisted in the Army from Akron, Ohio, in 1917. He also claimed to have been a sparring partner of Benny Leonard.

"The Cat," who gained the sobriquet because of the stealthy way he pounced upon his robbery victims, vanishing as stealthily, suffers from dementia praecox and is a kleptomaniac, his attorney, Louis Piquett, believes.

POET'S PICKED GUESTS PAY $55 TO SEE TRAGEDY

D'Annunzio Presents Play to Commemorate His March on Fiume.

ITALY TO HONOR WRITER

Gardon, Italy, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Six hundred men and women selected personally by Gabriele d'Annunzio from a thousand applicants paid a thousand lire each—equivalent at the present rate of exchange to something more than $55—for the privilege of witnessing a special performance of the poet's stirring pastoral tragedy—"Daughter of Iorio"—presented by a company of Italy's most noted actors today. The presentation was in the open air theater on the grounds of the poet's Villa Vitoriale.

The occasion was more than a simple theatrical performance, for by it, the Prince of Montenevoso celebrated the eighth anniversary of the famous march of his legionnaires, which ended in the capture of the city of Fiume. All the profits are to be applied to the completion of the Roman theater, hewn out of the stone in the garden of the poet-patriot's villa, which on his death passes into the hands of the state as a national monument.

Moreover, the same company, which was directed by Giovacchino Forzano, and included Maria Melato and Annibale Ninchi, today inaugurated a plan sponsored by Premier Mussolini to present in all the principal cities of Italy a full repertory of D'Annunzio's plays as a personal tribute to his genius.

The distinguished audience included D'Annunzio's wife, the Princess of Montenevoso, and his son, Veniero d'Annunzio, the Duke of Genoa, and many persons noted in art, as well as critics from all parts of the world. The poet himself was as nervous as a schoolboy before the performance, and was busy sending messages and gifts to many of his old friends among the audience.

The play, which the poet wrote in 22 days, was voted a huge success, the audience particularly admiring the magnificent setting in the rock to imitate a grotto in the mountainous Abrussi region, near D'Annunzio's birthplace.

COL. GLIDDEN, TELEPHONE AND AIR PIONEER, IS DEAD

New Englander Procured the World's First Subscriber to Exchange System.

LONG ACTIVE IN FLYING

Boston, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Col. Charles J. Glidden, telephone and aeronautical pioneer, died at his home here early today after an illness of more than a month. He was 70 years old.

Col. Glidden's death was caused by a growth on one of his lungs from which he suffered for more than a year.

At one time he controlled one-sixth of the Bell Telephone System in the United States. When he retired in 1900 he became interested in automobiles and later turned his attention to aeronautics. He served in the World War as an officer in the aviation section of the Signal Corps of the Officers Reserve Corps.

Col. Glidden started his career in 1873 as manager of the Atlantic Pacific Telegraph Co. In 1876 he inaugurated telephone experiments with Alexander Graham Bell between Boston and Manchester, N. H. He built private lines in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and in 1877 procured the first subscriber in the world to an exchange system. This happened in Lowell, his birthplace.

He organized and was president and treasurer of a number of New England and Western telephone companies. In 1901, when he became interested in the development of automobiles and also aerial transportation, he made the first automobile trip around the world. It covered 46,528 miles and took him into 39 countries. He made numerous other trips abroad.

He organized the Aerial Transportation Co., the first of its kind, to operate a line of airships between New York and Boston.

Col. Glidden was extremely active in aeronautics. He made 42 balloon ascensions in the United States and four in England. He later took an active part in flying and continued to make flights until a few years ago.

He was a member of the Royal Geographic Society of London, and of the aero clubs of France, England and the United States. He also was a Mason.

W. L. Walker Wealth To Wife and Daughter

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Ninety per cent of the million-dollar estate of William L. Walker, former vice president of the American Tobacco Co., will be divided equally between his widow and daughter, it was disclosed today when the will was filed for probate.

The widow is Mrs. Jane Haskell Walker, daughter of former Gov. Haskell of Oklahoma, and the daughter is the wife of Harvey C. Hines, of Kinston, N. C. The will provides that 10 per cent of the estate be divided between Walker's brother and two sisters.

THE SECOND A. E. F.

The second A. E. F. is on its way to France. The sailing of the Leviathan marked the official advance of the American Legion convention on Paris. Again, for the second time in the history of the United States, its warriors cross the seas to a European country. Gen. John J. Pershing and Vice President Dawes assured the Nation on the eve of the flagship's sailing, that the legion pilgrimage was bound to be a success and meant much in the relations between the two countries. The fulfillment of that sentiment is sincerely to be hoped for by every one in the United States.

There is, however, the possibility that the Paris convention may have its unpleasant moments. There is a large element in France, inflamed by the radical propaganda in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, which wishes to make the legion meeting the vehicle for an attack upon the United States. The preparations which the French authorities are making to prevent any outbreak or disorders proves that the danger is real. A demonstration against the parade which the American veterans plan to stage might result in ugly consequences.

The American visitors must do their best to ease the situation. It is another Paris which they are visiting. There are conditions in France today which make for sensitiveness. The shadow of war no longer hangs over the country, but the cost of living, high taxes and other influences have made the French touchy. Officially, they are ready to extend the legion a hearty welcome and every form of entertainment. Individually, they may resent a spirit of play too abandoned. The situation requires cool heads on both sides. It is to be hoped that there will be enough of them present so that the convention will indeed result in the furtherance of good relations between two countries, which before and during the war have had so much in common.

INTERCONNECTED POWER.

The Blue and Gray have met again in amity, but this time it is the blue waters of the South which have joined hands with the gray smoke of the North for the welfare of both. Recently a switch was thrown at the Virginia-Carolina State line connecting 3,000,000 horsepower of Southern hydroelectric energy with over 7,000,000 horsepower of steam-made electricity from the North.

More than a dozen independent power companies are involved in this huge interconnected system, which is admittedly merely the beginning of nation-wide availability of superpower. They have come to friendly agreement for the fair interchange of power among themselves in such a way as to make for more efficient operation of all. This means more reliable power service to every industry from Mobile and Atlanta to Chicago without added cost.

PURIFYING THE MILK SUPPLY.

During the time that Congress was discussing the so-called "Grout-bill" to place a tax on oleomargarine in order to prevent competition of that compound with the butter produced on the farms and in the creameries of the country, the opponents of the proposition insisted that there was far more danger to human health to be feared from the use of milk, cream and butter from cows affected with tuberculosis than from the use of butter substitutes. Later, in the year 1906, when the meat inspection law was placed on the statute books the question again arose as to the danger of the transmission of bovine tuberculosis to humans. But it was not until 1917 that Congress provided funds to aid the States in a determined effort to clean up the herds of the country and thus free milk from the possible taint of disease.

In 1918 the total appropriation for this purpose was only $75,000, but the fund available has grown from year to year. In 1920 $500,000 was made available, and in addition to that $1,000,000 was provided to indemnify the owners of cattle whose herds were found to be affected and whose animals were ordered slaughtered. This large fund, however, was insufficient, and from year to year there has been a steady increase. For the current year the total made available to the Agriculture Department was $5,964,000.

Since 1917 and up to the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1926, the veterinarians of the Federal department, in cooperation with like officials of the States, had reported 1,008,741 "reactors" in the herds tested. During the fiscal year 1927 9,700,176 animals were tested by these officials and reactors to the number of 285,361 were discovered and condemned. Up to the 1st of August of the present year claims for cattle which were condemned to the number of 207,830 had been filed with the department. These animals were appraised all the way from an average of $39.47 in Idaho up to $214.74 for those condemned in Hawaii.

It is interesting to note in this connection, too, that in the District of Columbia during the last fiscal year 22 herds, containing 669 animals, were tested and only 2 reacted to the test. The Southern States generally are more free from the disease than those of the North, for whereas nearly 18 per cent of the cattle in Rhode Island and nearly 13 per cent in Massachusetts showed evidence of tubercular infection, Georgia had only one-fifth of 1 per cent, Alabama three-tenths, Louisiana and Arkansas two-fifths and North Carolina only one-fifth of 1 per cent of the 103,000 animals examined.

In the regulations issued by the department, payment to owners of animals condemned is authorized by law, but no payment is made to exceed one-third of the difference between the appraised value of an animal and its salvage value. No payment may exceed $25 for any grade animal or $50 for a pure-bred, notwithstanding in some instances the reactors have cost their owners $1,000 or more. But the health of the community is of far more importance than the loss to the dairyman, and this nation-wide cleansing-up campaign is serving not only to rid the dairy herds of diseased animals but is teaching the dairyman the necessity for cleanliness and sanitary surroundings in barns and sheds.

TREASURY LITERATURE.

It is to be hoped that Treasury officials are not going to carry the proposed censorship of prohibition utterances into effect. There is for one thing the doctrine of free speech, which ought to apply equally as much to prohibition as to any other phase of current affairs. Already there has been too much of an effort to stifle discussion of the prohibition problem, especially the views of those who questioned the wisdom and efficacy of the eighteenth amendment.

It would, moreover, be a distinct loss to the literature of the Nation if a "gag" should be placed upon those connected with the enforcement service. Some of the most delightful and humorous chapters in contemporary history have been written by officials charged with putting the dry law into practice. The public may recall the literary efforts of Roy A. Haynes. No thriller equal to it has been produced in some years. No such bribes had ever been heard of before as Haynes said had been offered to his agents. It was a spicy piece of fiction.

Something would be lost, too, if Seymour W. Lowman should be forced to curtail his literary output. There was news and humor in his most recent offering. The pathos with which he described the passing of "Sweet Adeline," "John Brown's Body" and "Old Heidelberg" showed that he possesses a gifted pen. Most Governmental reports are prosaic and dull. Lowman put life into his "hand-outs." Talent such as his should be rewarded, not by censorship, but by additional printings.

POLICE PROTECTION.

The annual report of the Police Department, just made public, outlines a comprehensive plan for future action, and contains requests for additional personnel and equipment with which to combat criminal activity. Maj. Hesse, superintendent of police, and author of the report, believes that more men are needed, that new legislation along certain lines would add to efficiency in enforcements, and that modern equipment, including armored cars, machine guns and tear-gas bombs should be available to meet any type of emergency.

The present authorized strength of the police force is 1,284 men, exclusive of those assigned to duty as special street railway crossing policemen. As compared to other cities of approximately the same size, Washington stands close to the head of the list in the number of its policemen. The demands for police service are increasing daily, however, and it is inevitable that the local force will have to be enlarged. Maj. Hesse believes that there is work for 1,500 patrolmen, and that there should be, in addition, more detectives and motorcycle officers.

Washington, thus far, has been fortunate that it has not experienced raids by bandit bands equipped with machine guns and other modern offensive weapons. No one knows, however, when the Police Department will be called upon to struggle with such desperate criminals. It should, therefore, be equipped with armored cars, machine guns, tear bombs and every other modern weapon, and its members are entitled to the protection that such equipment affords.

An efficient police department necessitates the expenditure of a considerable sum, but it is money well spent. Washington in the past has been well policed, but as the community grows, the problems involved in the protection of life and property are bound to increase, and it must be expected that the cost of maintaining the department also will mount. Maj. Hesse's recommendations, if followed, will necessitate a considerable increase in appropriations, a matter of importance in view of the rapidly soaring cost of the municipal government. Conditions obtaining elsewhere fully justify additional money spent in this way.

GASSING THE GANGSTER.

It might be well for every bandit and hold-up man who contemplates a raid upon a bank, or upon a paymaster of a manufacturing institution, or in fact any enterprising bandit, whatever his line may be, before starting out on his professional work to watch out for the fountain pen. Ever since the discovery of tear gas it has been recognized as an effective weapon for use against the marauder.

Today there are several companies in the United States making tear gas containers in all sorts of shapes and forms, the most ingenious of which appears to be the fountain pen. This implement looks exactly like its prototype, which decorates the pockets of so many men of today, but instead of being loaded with ink it contains a cartridge charged with "tear gas" which can be exploded by pressing the button. The gas does the rest, and the beauty of this method is that while the would-be burglar can be knocked out of commission at a distance of 35 feet, and even from a key hole, around the corner of a wall, or from behind a tree, the carrier of the weapon discharged is in no danger of even temporary disturbance of his tear glands.

Tear gas is now put up in such form that the cartridges containing it can be attached to doors and windows of a house which has been left vacant, and through connection with a six-cell battery will guard it against the intrusion of undesirables far more effectively than can be accomplished through the employment of a night watchman. The intruder is halted, and for some hours—frequently 24—he will be too busy mopping the moisture from his eyes to proceed with his depredations. But he will not be permanently injured, although he will never care to run against a second dose. Besides the devices for pockets in form of pens, and the inside protector with its electrical attachment, cartridges are now furnished which can be used in an ordinary shotgun, an automatic pistol, or in the smallest revolver. They are all said to be effective and are already in use by the police officers in a dozen different cities as well as by jewelers, merchants, bank cashiers, gas station owners, and the clerks in chain stores, the latter having become particularly attractive to hold-up men within recent months.

WORLD'S PETROLEUM.

Just what will be the outcome of the attempt on the part of the oil producers of the United States to reach an agreement for the curtailment of production can not be ascertained at this time. A plan may be formed which will result in shutting down some of the wells of the larger corporations and this may relieve the situation to some extent, but it will be difficult to prevail upon the owners of small leases to shut down their source of income, especially such of them as are dependent upon a good showing in this respect to finance themselves for further development.

Whatever may be the result of the movement to conserve the oil in the earth in the United States, there is no indication that other countries have any such altruistic designs.

South America has rapidly forged toward the front as a crude oil producing country. In Colombia and Venezuela, particularly, development of new territory is progressing at a rate equal to that which followed the first discovery of oil in Oklahoma. In fact, it is announced from Maracaibo that development there has been so rapid that within a year it is expected that upward of 1,000,000 barrels a day will be added to the world's supply of crude oil from this one country alone. About one-half of the production of Venezuela is owned by the Dutch Shell interests, while British and German companies are also well represented among the operators. Operators from the United States have not been blind to the possibilities of this field, and already millions of dollars of American capital have been invested in Venezuela.

On top of all this comes the report from the Bureau of Mines of the possible development of a promising field in Alaska. Russia is already an important factor in the world's supply, with Mongolia and Siberia still to be heard from. It would appear that the danger of exhaustion of the oil within the earth is extremely remote, notwithstanding the fears so frequently expressed by those inclined to pessimism.

FIXING CENTERS.

The Geological Survey has had to relocate the center of industry in the United States. In 1908, the center was on the northern boundary of Indiana, approximately 110 miles east of Chicago. In January, 1918, it was still on the boundary of Indiana, but had moved about 50 miles nearer Chicago. In January, 1926, it had moved about 25 miles to the southwest of its previous position, and was about 50 miles southeast of Chicago. The total movement in a period of eighteen years was approximately 75 miles in a west-by-south direction.

The geographic center of the United States is near the center of the northern boundary of Kansas, and the center of population is in Owen county, southwestern Indiana. The center of industry, which is based on the capacity of steam engines, turbines, water wheels and internal combustion engines located in factories and in public utility power plants, is 640 miles east by north of the geographic center and about 170 miles due north of the center of population.

An industry is most economically situated when the cost of transporting raw materials to it, plus the cost of distributing manufactured products to the consumer, is as low as possible. Location in a center of population is most desirable, provided that the cost of hauling raw materials is not excessive, or, conversely, location at the source of supply of raw materials is advantageous, provided that cost of transporting the finished product is not excessive. The fact that the center of industry lies comparatively close to the center of population, and seems to be drawing closer to it, is indicative of the workings of the inflexible economic laws of distribution. Eventually, it may quite possibly be that the two centers will almost coincide.

"ON APPROVAL."

The Postoffice Department has decided that the public should be protected from the enterprising traders who have lately flooded the mails with merchandise addressed to "customers" who never ordered it. From all over the country have come complaints against these persons who ship unsolicited goods "on approval" to their victims and expect the recipient to go to the trouble of returning the neckties, socks or shirts—neckties being the most popular bait—if they are not wanted.

It is not so much because of the desire of the department to protect the public that steps are to be taken to stop the practice. Many of the recipients of the unwanted merchandise, growing tired of the persistency of the would-be sellers, decline to acknowledge the receipt in any way whatever. Thereupon the sender calls on the department to trace the package, and in the past the department has obligingly answered such requests. The Postoffice Department is not a sales agency for anything other than postage stamps and, having grown weary of the expensive labor which compliance with "tracer requests" has entailed, postmasters have been directed to deny the requests of mailers of merchandise for large numbers of "tracer cards" in the future.

The department declines from now on to act as the collection agency, although it will still carry C. O. D. parcels at the customary rates. Nor will legitimate houses be deprived of the privilege of sending goods on approval to their customers. This practice has grown to large proportions with the mail order firms, but their goods are invariably sent in response to the requests of customers. It is against the concerns which "take a chance" to sell their goods to people who never heard of the dealers, and have no desire to do so, that the order is aimed.

Room For Only One.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

As New York Goes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While a score or more gentlemen are playing the part of Barkis in being willin' it looks as if the Republican party is destined to have a long and hard search before it finds a candidate whose nomination will presage success. Every one that has been spoken of, save Coolidge alone, has aroused antagonism from some section of the country. One, Charles Evans Hughes, stands preeminent for ability. One thing stands out above all others, and that is, the candidate must be one who can carry New York against Al Smith, for the eyes of the Democratic party are so fixed on the New York Governor that his nomination is practically certain. There have been times when the vote of New York has not decided the question, but in 1928 whichever way the Empire State goes will be decisive of the general result. Smith is strong in his own State, and it will be a task to carry the State against him. Mr. Hughes can do that. Can any of the others mentioned be like successful? Coolidge might, but could Lowden, Longworth, Hoover, Mellon, Watson, or any of the smaller fry mentioned? The situation as it stands today places the Republicans in the doubtful column. The party has only one outstanding figure, and that is Mr. Coolidge. The third-term bogey stares him in the face. However, much of the feeling against that has died out, but enough may still linger to bring about his defeat. It is true, some of the rabid prohibitionists have declared they will run an independent candidate if Smith is nominated, but such a course would only insure his election, for the votes they would draw would come almost wholly from the Republicans, and that, in some States might be strong enough to turn the election. The prohibitionists by running tickets have always benefited the Democrats. So, unless the Republicans can find some man who can carry New York it is likely a Democrat will occupy the White House after March 4, 1929. W. H. S.

Party Platforms.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with much interest your editorial comments on the suggestions of former Senator Hitchcock. They recall to my mind a speech made by the late William H. English when he was Democratic vice presidential candidate on the Hancock ticket. I quote from notes made at the time. He said:

"You wonder why our party is not successful. The fault is in you and in me. We take up nearly the whole of our platform in 'pointing with pride,' to things long past, much of which ought to be forgotten, and in denouncing everything the opposing party has done, or proposes to do, much of which was good for the country at large. We denounce especially the tariff. Now, the tariff law may not be what I would have written, or what you would have written, but the business of the country having been adjusted to it, it is much better to let it alone. What the business of the country wants is stability—not change. Our denunciations, and our threats alienate business, the business men of the country are afraid to trust us. Let us accept what is good in what the Republicans have done, and free business from fears of change, if we want success."

This speech was made to a Democratic convention, and nearly verbatim repeated to a meeting of Democratic editors the next evening. This constant talk of tariff revision unsettles business, and that is bad for the country. But what are platforms in these modern days? The Democratic platform on which Mr. Wilson was nominated in 1912 declared in favor of free tolls for American shipping in the Panama Canal. Almost the first thing Mr. Wilson asked of Congress was the repeal of the free toll law. To him that plank in his platform was "only a scrap of paper." The platform on which Mr. Harding was elected declared in the most positive terms in favor of restoring the free tolls. He tacitly promised to see that it was done. He never uttered or wrote a word urging such return after he became President. Mr. Coolidge has been equally silent. So it is wr. to ask why spend time in drafting and adopting a platform? H. H. T. TOWNSEND.

"BRIDGE OF LINCOLN AND LEE."

There is building in the National Capital one of the most beautiful and, in proportion to its dimensions, expensive bridges in the world, to connect the Lincoln Memorial on this side of the Potomac with the National Cemetery at Arlington and the old home of Robert E. Lee on the other. It is to be called the "Memorial Bridge." A more meaningless and outworn title could ill be imagined, says the Boston Herald, which adds: We have numberless memorial bridges and drives and parks and halls. The word has been worked out. Our continued dependence on it bears witness to a poverty of imagination. Before it is too late the new structure should be named "The Bridge of Lincoln and Lee."

That would be actually descriptive of its two termini—from the Lincoln Memorial to the home of Lee. Such a bridge would be mistaken for no other in the whole world. There would be a certain alliterativeness in the phrase that would trip easily from the tongue As a name it would be no more cumbersome than the Bridge of Alexander Third, across the Seine.

But a greater reason than any of these, is that it would stand as a memorial to the two men whom a liberal interpretation of history now recognizes as the colossal figures of the war of secession, and the great period of which it was the culmination.

The best sentiment, North and South, is coming to recognize the preeminence of these two great Americans. The bridge connects the everlasting memorial to one with the quaint Virginia homestead of the other, replete with traditions of Washington and of the early days of the republic. What could be more appropriate than that this bridge, crossing the historic Potomac at this one point, should be known as no other could or will be, as "The Bridge of Lincoln and Lee?"

Man Broken By Sorrow

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THROUGH countless ages women have wept. Their men have gone out to make war and have died, or have been broken by the hazards incident to the business of earning bread. They have borne children and watched the children die.

Much acquaintance with grief has given them a sex resistance to grief—an immunity to the sharper pangs of sorrow. They outlive their men and quickly adjust themselves to the inevitable, so that in time they seem to find a kind of solemn joy in their bereavement as they do in martyrdom.

The widower whose mate was his chief treasure never reconciles himself to his loss. He marries again, as a rule, thinking to find in one woman a balm for the heartache caused by another's absence, but he never again knows happiness.

I have studied him—dozens of him—and wondered at his helplessness. I have watched him go to the devil in an effort to forget. I have seen him smile when his throat was filled with the ashes of sorrow. I have seen him make a brave show before the world, but without an exception he has been a broken man from the day of his loss.

A wife wonders what her husband would do if she should die, and is jealous in advance of the woman he might marry. She has no reason to fear dispossession.

She will live in his heart. He will endeavor to enjoy other women only because he hungers for her. Their every act and word will bring her to his mind—because they are like her or because they are unlike her.

And whether he is grave or merry, whether he whines or makes a brave show, whether he loses himself in his work or surrenders to vices, whether he has much to do with women or nothing at all to do with them, he will think the better part of his life is ended and he will go heart hungry to his grave.

He will not forget in 1 year, or in 10, or in 40. The scar will remain. He has no inbred sex capacity for the endurance of sorrow. It is the one enemy he can not hope to conquer. It breaks him.

A widow attracts men; a widower repels women. Instinct tells women the widower's heart is sealed in loyalty to his first mate.

Young Mr. Lindbergh would like to know who started the rumor that letter writing has gone out.

Ours is a free country to the well-behaved. The vicious dog's muzzle is the price of liberty.

Women have progressed so far that few of them faint any more without good and sufficient reason.

It must have been the hay fever victim's nose that inspired the sweetly solemn line: "The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year."

BALL CELEBRATES 25TH YEAR AS CAPITAL PASTOR

Metropolitan Baptist Preacher Scores Prize Fighting in Anniversary Sermon.

UPHOLDS YOUTH IN TALK

The Rev. John C. Ball, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, last night scored prize fighting in his sermon on "The Glittering Gold of Glorious Youth," in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary as pastor of the church.

God never intended that men should stand up and pound each other for exhibition such as will be done in the Dempsey-Tunney fight, he declared. The strength of youth should not be put to such "ignoble uses," but instead for the advancement of mankind, he said. Sports are fine, but boxing is brutal, he added.

Dr. Ball urged that churches recognize the value of the enthusiasm of youth. Caution is overemphasized by older people, he stated, adding that dying churches are the ones which do not encourage the young people in their progressive plans. He said churches that succeed recognize their value and make a place for the young people.

At the morning service Dr. Ball spoke on "God's Three Great Imperishables," which he declared were the Bible, the Cross and Christ. The word of God never can be destroyed, he declared, asserting that there is enough of the word stored up within the human heart to perpetuate it even if the Bbiles were burned.

Dr. Ball came to the Metropolitan Baptist Church in 1903 from the First Baptist Church of New Bethlehem, Pa. He began his ministry there four years before. He has built up the membership of his church from 300 to 1,300 and has been influential in erecting the building it now occupies.

The Illinois and Michigan associations have filed the proposal, he said, which would affirm that "healing of human, physical and mental ailments through the instrumentality of spirit force or forces, is a fact of nature scientifically established."

It is also proposed that the definition of "medium," be amended to include the practice of spiritual healing

ARRESTS IN MOVIE "LOCATION" FIGHT

Managers of Rival Concerns Taken; Armed Men Guard Disputed Site.

Cedar City, Utah, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The first arrests in connection with the controversy between rival film companies for a virgin "location" in the mountains in southern Utah were made following an altercation in the lobby of the Cedar City Hotel.

Louis Jerome, business manager of the Edwin Carewe Co., of the United Artists Corporation, and Val Paul, production manager of the Albert Rogell Co., of First National Stars, were taken into custody by the city marshal and released on bail.

Rogell had fifteen armed men and a force of deputies, headed by Sheriff J. T. Leigh, of Iron County, guarding approaches to the disputed "location." Leigh contends the Rogell outfit has prior rights. It has developed that while Rogell's men are armed with sawed-off shotguns, the deadly load of shot has been withdrawn and coarse salt substituted.

Carewe said it was up to the governor of the State to settle the controversy.

EXPLORER CALLED DUPE OF JUNGLE'S SORCERY

Fawcett Forgetting World in Paradise of Birds, Wild Cattle and Game.

SO SAYS COURTEVILLE

Lima, Peru, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Roger Courteville, the Brazilian engineer who claims to having found Col. P. H. Fawcett, noted British explorer, has given further details of his meeting with Col. Fawcett, who had not been heard from since May, 1925. Courteville was on an automobile expedition in the interests of his government, which intends to construct a highway that will make possible a trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic in fourteen days.

Starting from Rio Janeiro September 12, 1926, the engineer reached Lima August 10 and claims the distinction of being the first man to traverse by automobile the jungles of Brazil and Bolivia. It was while crossing Matto Grosso state last November, Courteville reported, that he found Col Fawcett, living with his son and another white man on a farm about 63 miles from Diamantina, state of Matto Grosso, in the geographical center of South America.

When Col. Fawcett arrived at Cuyaba, capital of the state of the same name, the engineer related, the explorer received $6,000 from the state government to search for an ancient lost city, somewhere in Matto Grosso territory. The city is said to have been founded by white Indians, and, although it never was seen by a white man, the legendary story of its existence often has been told. It is supposed to have great quantities of gold, diamonds and other riches.

Courteville's story is that Col. Fawcett, unable to find the city, his son afflicted with malaria and the party experiencing trouble with the Indians, returned to the starting point of his expedition. There he established himself as a "fazendeiro," or farmer, in a region described as a veritable paradise land.

Courteville said that the explorer had become fascinated by the sorcerous jungle, and wished to know nothing from the civilized world and its people. He spends his time fishing in the rivers and shooting wild cattle, game and the marvelously feathered tropical birds, and appears to be enjoying his paradisiacal existence.

The Fawcett farm settlement, which was cultivated by the explorer and his aids, Courteville said, is not far from the River of Doubt, discovered by the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Your Kidneys
Are the Sentinels of Your Health. Don't Neglect Them!

YOUR kidneys! Do you realize what an important part these organs play in your bodily health and length of life? The kidneys are the blood filters.

To be well they must thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous waste. Sluggish kidneys permit waste impurities to remain in the blood and cause slow poisoning of the system.

One is apt to feel tired and drowsy—to have a dull, nagging backache and annoying headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not working right is often shown by scanty or burning excretions.

Assist the kidneys with a stimulant diuretic.* Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Doan's act on the kidneys only—are endorsed from coast to coast. Ask your neighbor!

Diuretics are agents which increase the secretion of the kidneys.—Encyclopaedia definition.*

BUSINESS QUICKENS AS AUTUMN TRADE PREPARATIONS GO ON

Week's Gains in Most Lines Gradual; New High Mark for Freight Loadings.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN STEEL OPERATIONS

Auto Industry Moves Calmly; Oil Situation Quiet; Crops Are "Spotty."

New York, Sept. 12 (Associated Press.). The pulse of American business quickened last week as preparations for autumn trade began in earnest following the Labor Day recess. Gains in most lines were gradual and of a seasonal character, but with them arose a new feeling of confidence in the commercial outlook for the remaining weeks of 1927.

One of the outstanding developments was the report on revenue freight loadings for the week ended August 27, which established a new high mark for the year, although yet considerably under the figure for 1926. This turn for the better was regarded in most quarters as of no little significance, as the movement of freight is taken as one of the most reliable barometers of industry. Car loadings, which declined steadily after April, began to ascend the grade again around the middle of the summer, although the total for the year showed gradual recessions from last year's aggregate until the week just reported, when a beginning was made toward closing the gap.

Steel Operations Improve.

Steel operations showed a gradual improvement. Buying appeared to gather force slowly, but with a confidence that stimulated some hope that a material acceleration would develop as the season advanced. The conservative hand-to-mouth policy still ruled purchases, and there is little expectation that any change from such a policy will be adopted to any extensive degree. Prices in the steel trade showed little change, with the exception of further slight easing off of pig iron quotations.

The report of unfilled orders of the United States Steel as of August 31 showed an increase of more than 54,000 tons. This occasioned no surprise, as preliminary estimates in Wall street had indicated a gain over the July 31 figures, although earlier in August there had been some expectation that a loss would be shown.

Auto Outlook Changes Little.

The automotive industry moved calmly in practically the same channel it has been following for several weeks. While some companies were speeding up a little, others dropped off. Several new models were announced during the week, and the uncertainty surrounding other new cars which have been announced, but have not yet made their appearance on the market, continued to be a factor.

Development of plans to curtail production in west Texas was a significant development in the petroleum trade, but hope thereby engendered was tempered somewhat by cautious remarks by Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, on his return from Europe, regarding the price outlook.

Crop Situation Is Spotty.

The crops displayed a spotty appearance. The Government cotton report indicated a yield about 800,000 bales less than had been predicted on August 1, and resulted in a sharp jump in cotton prices.

The credit situation showed little change other than some tightening of call money rates at the end of the week. Bank clearings fell behind the totals for the preceding week, but gained around 17 per cent from the corresponding five days of last year.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Reports on the production, sales, shipments and stocks of cotton cloth for August, compiled by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, show a more comprehensive picture of the current statistical position of the industry than ever before. Through cooperation of the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., data was obtained from many mills not previously reporting to the association. The month's production of cotton cloth was 245,605,000 yards and sales 225,992,000 yards. Sales represented 104.2 per cent of production. Stocks on hand August 31 were 201,217,000 yards, against 177,527,000 on August 1. Unfilled orders were 491,960,000 yards, an increase of 7.4 per cent.

"Business forecasts seem quite generally agreed that the outlook is favorable and that there will be a considerable expansion this fall and that good business appears to be assured for the year 1927 up to the end," says the American Bankers Association Journal.

Chain store and mail order business broke all records for summer trade this year, says a review by Frazier, Jelke & Co. The volume of chain store sales at the present time is fully 15 per cent above last year.

Statistics of the foreign investments of the United Kingdom and the United States over the period 1920 to 1927, made public by the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, show that in 1920 foreign loans of the United States were considerably larger than Great Britain's, that between 1921 and 1923 the two countries were running about even. Great Britain took the lead in 1923, but since 1924 the American overseas investments have forged ahead, until in the first half of 1927 they were roughly two and a half times as large as British foreign investments.

Net income of the constituent properties of Peoples Light & Power Corporation for the year ended July 31 was $1,568,254, an increase of $209,706 over the previous year. Gross revenues gained $132,443, but operating expenses were about $77,000 less.

TIGHTENING OF MONEY HALTS GAINS ON CURB

Much of Week's Trading Done in Utility Issues; High-Priced Shares Active.

OILS MOVE CAUTIOUSLY

New York, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Price movements in the curb market last week were mainly toward higher ground uptil toward the end, when heavy pressure developed among many of the leading issues, following a tightening of call money rates and a selling movement on the "big board." Buying in the earlier days of the week, however, was sustained and of a rather broad character.

Much of the week's business was transacted in public utility issues, in reflection of the prosperous condition of the industry. Power companies in particular have been showing rapid advances in recent months, and some observers are disposed to refer to this phase as the "key" industry of the midyear period.

High-priced stocks were unusually active, particularly those in which special developments were believed pending. Singer Sewing Machine, for instance, mounted rapidly, presumably in anticipation of the $3.50 a share extra dividend declared at the end of the week. Royal Baking Powder also bounded upward, accompanied by rumors of a possible merger.

Oil stocks moved slowly and cautiously, accompanied by optimistic reports of plans to curb production in the west Texas area, and a more or less discouraging view of the price situation. Chain stores were strong in the early days of the week in consequence of continued evidences of expanding sales and prospects for good earnings. Some of the Rayon issues also were buoyed up by the outlook for good business in the fall.

The bond market was rather active, but prices on the whole showed only nominal changes from the levels of the close of the preceding week.

WEST PENN ELECTRIC PREFERED OFFERED

An offering of $8,300,000 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the West Penn Electric Co. is offered today by W. C. Langley & Co. at 100 and accrued interest.

Proceeds will be used to purchase additional securities of subsidiary companies, to effect retirement of funded debt and preferred stock, as well as the acquisition of additional properties by the subsidiaries.

Gross earnings of the West Penn Electric and subsidiaries were $36,383,333 for the twelve months ended July 31, out of which there was a balance of $5,701,967 available for dividends on the preferred stock after reserve for renewals and replacements of $2,876,899. This $5,701,967 is equal to more than 2½ times the annual dividend requirements on all 7 per cent and 6 per cent preferred stock outstanding, including this issue.

NATS BEAT CHISOX IN 12TH; CROWD DELAYS GAME

Cubs Defeat Giants by 7 to 5

6-Run Rally in Sixth Decides as 45,000 Fans Cheer.

Carlson Weathers 9th-Inning Threat to Triumph.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A six-run rally in the sixth inning gave Chicago a 7-to-5 victory over the Giants today, before the largest crowd of the season, estimated at 45,000. The crowd was banked around the outfield, making hits into the overflow good for two bases. During the sixth inning rally a storm of straw hats showered on to the field, delaying the game until the players, ushers and park attendants gathered in the discarded summer head gear.

The victory brought the Cubs back The Cubs now are but half a game behind the Giants.

Hack Wilson started the scoring in the second inning by cracking out his twenty-sixth home run of the season, a drive over the right-field wall with none on base. That put him in a tie with Cy Williams, of the Phillies, for the National League leadership.

The Giants replied with three runs in the fifth. Terry's single and Jackson's walk produced one tally when Harper doubled into the crowd. Jackson came home on Taylor's sacrifice fly. Two more singles by Barnes and Mueller sent Harper home, but the Cubs cut off further scoring with a lightning double play.

A barrage of hits and two passes sent Barnes to the showers in the sixth, but the Cubs got two more off Henry before the rally was ended. The Giants' ninth-inning rally could not produce a win.

France to Hold Davis Cup For Years, Experts Agree

Lacoste, 23, and Cochet, 25, Have Necessary Youth to Succeed "Bills"—Richards Could Have Saved Trophy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—France, having broken America's seven-year-old on the Davis Cup, is likely to keep the famous tennis tophy for some years to come.

The new dynasty of control, built chiefly around the youthful skill of Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet, steps into the international tennis hall of fame that such famous combinations as Wilding and Brookes, of Australia, the Doherty brothers of England and America's own "Bills," Johnston and Tilden, have occupied in the past.

France may not hold the heights as long as "Big Bill" and "Little Bill" did. Time and the development of a new top flight of playing talent by the United States will determine this. But there doesn't seem much prospect of upsetting the French rule for several years, at least.

Johnston was 26 and Tilden 27 when, in 1920, they brought the Davis Cup back from Australia and began their long reign of supremacy. Lacoste, now only 23, has won every major title in Europe or America. Cochet is only 25. On the basis of age, the French stars appear likely to stay at the peak indefinitely.

BROWNS STOP YANKEES, 6 TO 2

Record Made in 1884 Is Broken by Ruth's 50th Homer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns averted a season's whitewashing from the Yanks today by dropping the New Yorkers for a 6-to-2 count in the final game of the year between the clubs before 35,000 fans. The Hugmen lost a chance of establishing a new major league record by making a clean sweep of 22 games. However, they tied the Cubs' mark of 21 victories out of 22 against the Braves in 1909.

Babe Ruth turned in home run No. 50 in the fourth inning, one of five hits yielded by Milt Gaston. That helped the Yanks make baseball history as it gave their club a total of 141 homers, replacing the old record of 140, made by the Chicago White Stockings in 1884.

TUNNEY SURE OF WINNING, HE SAYS

Champion to Loaf for Few Days—Boxed 5 Rounds Yesterday.

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A busy day in the ring before a large crowd of Sunday tourists ended Gene Tunney's training today for a few days, for the champion plans to loaf at least until Wednesday. Tunney omitted road work in favor of church this morning visiting Antioch Church, which he attended last Sunday.

The patch of court plaster, which he has worn over his right eye since it was cut last Tuesday in a skirmish with Chuck Wiggins, was removed when the champion climbed into the ring today, with no sign of the injury visible.

Tunney did two rounds apiece on the light and heavy bags, and then five rounds with Jackie Williams, his new sparring mate, a Chicago light heavyweight, and Billy Vidabeck Williams gave the champion a speedy workout for two rounds.

Against Vidabeck, with whom he has worked out for many months, Tunney scored almost at will. Since he expected to take a rest after today's boxing, Tunney seemed to throw in a bit more speed than usual.

The crowd, nearly twice as large as any that have previously visited the champion's camp, took a decided liking to Williams, who showed willingness to swap punches with Tunney vigorously. Williams waded right in at the start of the first round, but tired a bit in the second session from the dizzy pace.

In his dressing room after the workout, Tunney said he had never felt surer of winning a fight in his life. He said he had worked hard at Speculator, N. Y., for two months, and only needs to keep in that condition until September 22, to retain his crown.

Davey Miller, a Chicago referee, named among the four or five who may be chosen to referee the big Soldiers Field battle, watched the champion's workout today and admitted he had started doing a little road work, but had no knowledge whether he would be picked as the third man in the ring.

K. O. by Fifth Predicted by Dempsey

Qualifies Statement With "If Tunney Will Fight."

Will Go Into Battle Without Any Worries, He Says.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Crete, Ill., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey will go into his comeback battle with Gene Tunney "without a worry in the world" and will have no excuses to offer if defeated, the former champion told the newspaper men who gathered with him today in the biweekly conference.

Acting as his own "official spokesman," Jack said in answer to questions that he would weigh 196 pounds for the title fray in Soldier Field September 22, three more than he scaled today. Training work for the ten days intervene before the fight will "carry itself along from day to day" with no effort to follow a regular program.

Dempsey said he expected to do a good deal of hard work before the fight and might work out two or three nights under the strong lights installed over his outdoor ring to accustom his eyes to the glare. There will be nothing secret about the workouts, he said.

Jack denied friction had arisen between himself and Manager Leo P. Flynn in reply to rumors that had reported the "Silver Fox" about to leave the training camp and turn over his duties to Bill Duffy, of New York, Dempsey's chief second in the winning battle with Jack Sharkey.

Dempsey said he did not believe Flynn had any dispute with Tex Rickard, promoter of the $3,000,000 spectacle, over the sum Flynn is to receive for handling Jack's affairs. Flynn's services have a reported value of $25,000 for the coming contest.

"How are my legs? Well, I threw away the crutches last week and don't think I'll need them again," Jack joked. "They've looked shaky at times, I suppose. Just take a few socks on the chin yourself and see if your legs won't wobble. They've never failed me yet, though, and they carried me around the ring against Louis Firpo when a belt on the jaw had tangled my brain all up.

"If Tunney whips me again, I'll have no alibis. That's the game—you win or you lose. You never claim a victory was lucky. Why try to say that defeat was due to anything but the better fighting ability of the opponent?

"I'm in the finest possible shape, strong as an ox and supremely confident. If Tunney will fight, I'll knock him out in five rounds."

Jack was in splendid spirits as he joked and fooled with the correspondents gathered as he took a rubdown under the hands of Trainer "Jerry, the Greek." Not an ounce of excess weight showed on his lithe body, stained a nut brown by the sun.

The routine for the day consisted only of four rounds of light bag punching to work up a perspiration and keep muscles in trim. Jack introduced an innovation in the final round by having Jerry steady the bag while he took full swings, alternating with either hand. Although only "newspaper men" were admitted to the arena, about 500 saw the abbreviated drill.

Reds Defeat Braves Twice, 8-4 and 16-5

Cincinnati, Ohio., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Reds won both ends of a double-header with Boston here today, 8 to 4 and 16 to 5. The first game was comparatively easy for Pete Donohue while the second was a complete walk-over for Jakie May.

The shades of a . e famous team crept into the closing inning of the second game when Dick Rudolph essayed to pitch for Boston after Hugh McQuillan was given an unmerciful pounding by the home club. The only active member left of the famous Braves of 1914 is Rabbit Maranville, now playing with St. Louis, while Rudolph acts as coach for the Bean Eaters.

Pitcher Judd Ordered to Join Nats

He and Hopkins to Finish Season With Harrismen.

Nats Idle Today but Play Tigers in Twin Bill Tomorrow.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TODAY is the first of two open dates in the Nationals' schedule for the week, the other being Friday. Because of a shortage of pitchers, Manager Harris is unable to call a general practice for this morning, although several of the players will be out to do a little fielding.

The Tigers are the next team to show up here, this series opening with a double-header at the Clark Griffith Stadium tomorrow. The Harrismen are now only half a game back of the Jungaleers, and this set gives them the opportunity of passing the Detroiters and pulling right up on the Mackmen's heels.

In the nineteen games already played between the two teams the Nationals have lost ten, won eight and tied one, th' indicating that they are closely matched, despite the fact that in Heilmann and Fothergill the Detroit outfit has two of the league's leading hitters

Harris is uncertain as to which pitchers he will use. Tom Zachary is pretty sure to be one mound starter, while Fred Marberry may et the call in the other game, although Boss Bucky is seriously considering giving Garland Braxton, who has done well in relief roles, a chance.

For a while yesterday it looked as though Washington fans might cost the Nats a ball game. They rushed on the field in the twelfth inning, thinking the game was over following Stewart's apparent scoring under Tate's fly to left, and considerable time was lost in clearing the field, when the umpire ruled that Stewart had left third too soon.

In Chicago two or three years ago, under somewhat similar circumstances, fans rushed on the field, ground officials were unable to get them back in their seats, and the umpires forfeited the game to the visiting team even though the Cubs were leading at the time.

In addition to Pitcher Paul Hopkins, New Haven right-handed hurler, President Griffith also has requested that the Peoria Club, of the Three-Eye League, send Ralph Judd, who also flings with his right arm, to finish out this season with the Harrismen.

When this pair of youngsters will show up is problematical as replies to Griffith's telegrams were rather indefinite. Bill Rodgers, Peoria manager, promised to send Judd "as soon as possible," which may mean any time within the next two weeks.

Garland Braxton, whose great relief work this season has had much to do with the team doing as well as it has, took part in his fifty-first game yesterday when he relieved Zachary in the third inning. This put him only two behind Fred Marberry, who originated the position of relief "specialist" in baseball.

Braxton retired the White Sox himself in the fifth. Mostil and Reynolds rolled to him while between these bounders he snagged Metzler's pop bunt.

A drive from Speaker's bat came near damaging Pitcher Faber in the fifth yesterday. The spit-baller knocked down the drive partially with his bare hand and then dropped like he was badly hurt. After a few moments delay while Faber "checked up," he decided that he was uninjured and picked up where he left off.

Mack Picks Reeves, Goslin As American League's Best

Athletics' Manager Names Lyons, Hoyt, Moore and Grove Pitchers on His 1927 All-Star Team.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Connie Mack, sometimes silent leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, has got the jump on other rival managers by announcing his selection of the first of the season's "All-American" Baseball Team. He gives the New York Yankees five positions and the Athletics four Even had the Athletics played at top speed all season, Mack said, they would not have beaten the Yankees for the pennant.

"The club has been a disappointment," he continued, "not because it didn't win the pennant, for it could not have done that against the Yankees anyway. The disappointment comes in seeing us fifteen or sixteen games behind, when if we had played our best the margin would have been much smaller."

CARD ROOKIE DEFEATS ROBINS

Frankhouse Gives 4 Hits in Scoring 5-0 Victory.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Fred Frankhouse, former Houston hurler, with a side-arm delivery, won his second game in two starts for the Cardinals by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers here today, 5 to 0.

The recruit pitcher allowed the Dodgers only four hits and brought the world's champions up into tie with New York for second place.

Two errors, one by Barrett and another by Herman, gave St. Louis three runs in the eighth. Holm popped a single to center. Bottomley bunted, and both runners were safe on Barrett's fumble. Frisch bunted, and when Herman made a wild throw past third Holm and Bottomley scored and Frisch reached first.

NORDLINGER HANDICAP WINNER

Goldsmith Defeated, 2 and 1, at Town and Country.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

HOWARD NORDLINGER, who won the annual handicap championship tournament at the Town and Country Club last year, yesterday repeated his victory by defeating Ralph Goldsmith in the final round, 5 and 4.

In the semifinal round, which was played yesterday morning, Goldsmith defeated Walter Nordlinger in a closely contested match, 2 and 1. Howard Nordlinger defeated Isaac Behrens in the semi-final round, 6 and 5, although he was compelled to give Behrens six strokes. Playing the first nine holes in 39, however, he obtained a lead which Behrens could not overcome.

In the final round, although Nordlinger had to concede six strokes to Goldsmith, three on each nine, he again played unbeatable golf and was always up on his opponent, winning easily with four holes still to play, 5 and 4.

Town and Country Club golfers will compete next Sunday in the annual club championship. A qualification round of eighteen holes will be played and the match play will be without any handicap allowance.

Although the entries for Bannockburn Golf Club invitation tournament were announced to close last night, the officials of the club stated that the list would be kept open today for post entries and the pairings would be made tonight. The Bannockburn event is the final club invitation tournament of the season and a large field is already assured.

Qualification rounds for the Indian Spring Club championship began yesterday, although members will be privileged to turn in cards during the remaining days of this week.

During the present week, also, there will be match play rounds at the Argyle, Beaver Dam and Bannockburn Clubs in the club championships now under way.

The annual club championship of the Columbia Club will be scheduled for the first or second week in October, with five divisions, based upon handicaps, competing. The first sixteen, or championship flight, will be confined to players with handicap of eight or under.

Unusual Play Prolongs Contest

Stewart Out for Leaving Base Before Fly Is Caught.

Bluege's Double and Single by Hayes Bring Victory.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

THE Washington team beat the White Sox yesterday under difficulties of their own making. The score was 6 to 5 after twelve turbulent innings, and when the end came a few thousand of the fans were not there, because they had left the scene a few moments before under a slightly false impression that the contest had ended, when it hadn't.

Washington won ultimately, of course, but the early report of their victory was found to be unfounded.

It seems that with the score tied in the last of the twelfth, Joe Judge hit a triple to center field with none out, and that Stewart was sent in to run for him. Tate followed with a long fly to left field and Stewart beat Reynolds' throw home. That was supposed to be the winning run, and the crowd of 15,000 started for the exits, overrunning the field until something happened.

What happened was that Ted Lyons, who was pitching for Chicago, had called for the ball and directed Shortstop Flaskamper to touch third base. Flaskamper threaded his way through the mob of fans and touched the base, whereupon Umpire Hildebrand ruled that Washington had not yet won the game.

It seems that Stewart, in his anxiety to run home with the winning run, left third base before Reynolds actually had caught the ball, and when the base was tagged by Flaskamper Stewart was out and a double play was made, placing the game in status quo, with two out.

Then a hurry call was sent to the Washington locker room, where half of the team had rushed, believing the game ended. The astonished players resumed the game, but only after the field had been cleared of fans with great difficulty.

Then Washington won the game legitimately. Bluege, the next batter, slashed a double to left field. Jack Hayes, the rookie shortstop, drove a line drive in the same territory and Bluege came home with the winning run, after making certain to touch third base and home plate.

The rookie's hit brought a halt to a weird battle. Previously Washington had scored four runs in the ninth inning to tie the score at 5 to 5 after the White Sox appeared to have won the game beyond a doubt and beyond

ST. JOSEPH'S DEFEAT BALLSTON CLUB, 13 TO 9

West Section Pennant is Decided

Saints Rally Near End After Virginians Take Lead.

Nicro and Baker Are Batting Stars in Titular Game.

THE St. Joseph's gained the west section title of the unlimited class in the Capital City League yesterday by defeating the Ballston A. C., 13 to 9, on the latter's field. Rallies in the late innings, after the home team had scored six runs in the fifth inning, were big factors in the victory of the Saints.

Stolle relieved Farrington in the seventh when the latter was forced out of the game because of a twisted ankle, and pitched effectively during the remainder of the route.

Hull hurled the entire game for Ballston and was solved for fourteen hits, the majority of which came at opportune times. Baker's home run clout into the road in right field was the climax of a Ballston rally, that netted six runs in the fifth inning.

The Saints came back strong in the following frame to tally five runs. Then after the Virginians had assumed a temporary lead in the seventh the visitors won the game with deciding rallies in the eighth and last innings.

Farrell and Nicro were the hitting heroes of the winners, while Baker was prominent in the attack of the Ballston team

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT E. COLLYER

FLAG LIEUTENANT.

Dig down in the old browns and plant a couple of megs on the beezer of this plater at Washington Park today. Goes in the last spasm and they tell me Keller has the boys lined up from Maine to California; taking whatever they can get. In the opening affair, I understand CANBERRA is ripe for a melon cutting. BE STILL recently shipped down from Canada by the Kelley Stable, should not be overlooked. Rome Respess has LAPETITE in the second and with any kind of a good ride will cake walk. GOLFEX and HONEYFISH will be the runners-up.

AGNES CALL figures a shade the best in the third according to my figures. LA MORTE and MISS ROSEDALE for what is left. RUANE gets the call in the fourth. BIG SWEEP needs only to canter to grab the big end of the purse in the fifth.

Over at Hamilton, the sweet patootie is PANDORA in the third event. DEDANS goes in the first race, and they tell me the PETER PAN gelding is already "in." JEWEL KIT is the hot one in the second. Has JAMES F. O'HARA to beat. I also have received word that PHANARIOT is to be let loose in the fifth.

The lads at Fairmount shoot MAZETTA, in the fifth race, as their special. Also BLUEFISH, which is scheduled to go right back in the seventh.

More anon.

Moose Defeat Circles, 9-2, For Senior Section B Title

THE Moose Seniors, of Southeast, yesterday won the section B senior Capital City League title by defeating the National Circles, of Northeast, 9 to 2, on the East Potomac Park diamond. The Moose, by virtue of their victory, will meet the Auths, winners of section A, in a double-header next Sunday, which may decide the championship.

O'Connor was the hero of the Moose victory. He held the Circles to three hits and fanned fourteen batters. However, he was given fine support.

Oehman pitched a better game for the Circles than the score indicates. The Moose had no big rally, but just pecked away, taking advantage of all breaks to score in seven of their eight innings at bat.

Biddle, the Moose catcher, came through with the feature hit of the game—a homer—and in addition contributed a single. Clanton and Jarman also got two hits each.

Tremonts Stop Keanes, 7-5, For Petworth Senior Title

THE Tremonts won their second consecutive Petworth League championship yesterday, when they defeated the T. T. Keanes, 7 to 5 in the deciding game of the play-off title series before a throng of 2,000 fans on the Ellipse diamond.

The Tremonts launched an attack in the opening inning to score 6 runs, which proved the margin of victory. Successive hits by Brown, D. Ciango, Clark, D. Galotta, P. Ciango, followed by a triple by Baker and an error, accounted for the six tallies.

After this inauspicious start, Freschie settled down and scattered three hits over the remainder of the route. Baker was accorded fine support of his mates, who contributed a pair of sparkling double plays at critical stages. The fielding of Willener at third base for the Tremonts was another highlight of the game.

Brown and J. Freschi led their respective teams at bat.

Cherrydale Winner Over Addison, 8 to 7

Cherrydale defeated the Addison A. C., 8 to 7, yesterday, and evened the series between these teams. A scoring spree in the second inning that netted six runs, was a big factor in Cherrydale's victory. Robertson and Unverzagt were the batting stars of the game.

FRANCE MAY HOLD NET CUP FOR YEARS

selves are confident of this they indicated today on their return from Philadelphia, where they won three out of five of the challenge round matches from the United States and reached a goal they have been steadily nearing for three years.

With some conservativeness, M. Pierre Gillou, French captain, declared he "hoped" his players would be able successfully to defend the trophy in Paris next year.

Most American critics are less cautious. They regard the French just now as invincible. They expect Lacoste or Cochet, but probably the former, to complete their conquest here by again carrying the American singles championship back to France in the title tournament at Forest Hills this week. They do not see much prospect of America's regaining the tennis heights for some time to come, now that Tilden and Johnston appear definitely to have taken the downgrade.

Tilden will make a determined effort to win back the singles title this week, but it appears doubtful whether his resources will be sufficient for him to keep his game at top notch for a week, especially as he would be called on to face Cochet and Lacoste on successive days to do so.

"Big Bill" still has his old wizardry of stroke. For two days at Germantown he was close to being as invincible as ever. But the strain of carrying the main load of Davis Cup defense, plus the inevitable toll of 34 years, proved too much.

This may be Johnston's last year of competition in the East or in international campaigns of any sort. The gallant little Californian has been threatening to retire for some time. Business kept him from coming East as early as usual this year. His consequent lack of practice, thought at first likely to be an advantage, in a saving of stamina, turned out to be a boomerang. It seems certain he will not appear again, at any rate, in Davis Cup competition.

The two 1927 Davis Cup alternates, 20-year-old George Lott, of Chicago, and the 18-year-old Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif., may be the corner stones in constructing a new American Davis Cup team. They developed rapidly this year.

Lott showed particular promise and has the distinction of being the only American outside of Tilden to defeat Lacoste this year. He accomplished this feat in an invitation tournament at Southampton, Long Island. Tilden did it at Paris in the United States-France team matches.

American tennis leaders, among them Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War and donor of the trophy, accept the loss of the Davis Cup philosophically and expect the passing of Tilden and Johnston from a dominant position to stimulate the up and coming crop of younger players. In the past seven years only one youngster, Vincent Richards, was able to dislodge either Bill from the singles of the Davis Cup play. Vinny did it in 1924, when he replaced Johnston.

Incidentally, had Richards remained an amateur and been on the team this year a different story might have been written on the challenge round. Richards' departure to professional ranks broke up the championship doubles team he formed with Richard N. Williams beating the French in 1925 and 1926. Tilden, as a result, was forced to share the doubles play last week, playing three days in a row. Had he conserved his strength for the singles alone, Big Bill might have turned the tables on Lacoste for the deciding point.

ACES MIDGET SECTION B WINNERS

Fisher Steals Home to Beat Eskimos, 3-2, in Final Game.

SCORELESS until the eighth inning, the Aces rallied to score three runs and win the Section B Midget class title yesterday by a 3-to-2 score from the Eskimos on the Monument Grounds. Capt. Willis Fisher scored the winning run by stealing home.

Orville Brown pitched a brilliant game for the Aces, but was matched by Bill Payne, of Eskimos, who deserved a better fate. More alert support would have brought him the honors. Each team collected five hits with Brown the only player to hit safely twice.

The Aces will begin the play-off for the Capital City championship next Sunday, meeting the Sam Rices, winners of Section A.

NATS TIE SOX IN 9TH AND WIN IN 12TH, 6-5

any retrieving efforts that the Nationals might decide upon.

These four runs helped to knock Urban Faber out of the box and brought Ted Lyons to the firing line. Lyons, who shut out the Nationals on Friday, was no puzzle yesterday.

He was one of the six pitchers in the game. Washington used Zachary, who was no bargain. Braxton later followed and was relived by Walter Johnson. Lisenbee pitched the last three innings and was given credit for the victory.

Manager Ray Schalk, of the White Sox, was banished from the game in the twelfth by Umpire McGowan, when he protested a third strike on Mostil vigorously enough to assure his banishment.

Red Faber was blasted off the pitching mound without ceremony in the ninth when Washington engineered a batting rally that scored four runs and tied the score. A telling two-base hit by "Goose" Goslin with two on base and one out, emptied the bases and tied the score.

Young Hayes, who conducted himself like a veteran throughout the contest, started off this rally with a single to right field and advanced on Ruel's walk. Lyons relieved Faber and Rice flied out, but Manager Harris scored Hayes with a single to right field. Speaker advanced Harris with a lucky single over Ward's head and Goslin's blow drove both Harris and Speaker home. Judge later walked, but neither Tate nor Bluege were able to produce.

Zachary was soundly thumped during the first three innings, but he was also a victim of loose play by Rice and Goslin in the outfield that accounted for a run. The White Sox scored a run in the first on Flaskamper's double and Kamm's single and five straight hits, coupled with errors by Goslin and Rice scored three more off Zachary in the third. Braxton held the Sox helpless until the seventh when Hayes' excusable error allowed Kamm to score from third with a run.

Washington in the meantine had had little to do with Faber, although managing to score a run in the eighth when Goslin was hit by a pitched ball and registered on hits by Harris and Tate.

Following the uprising in the ninth, which sent the game into extra innings, Lisenbee held the White Sox in check. In the tenth he walked Reynolds with one out, but the latter was caught stealing. In the eleventh, Clancy's single and Crouse's sacrifice put a man on second with one out, but both Lyons and Flaskamper popped to Hayes. In the twelfth Kamm flied out, Mostil saw a third strike go by and Metzler flied out.

The Nats never threatened to win the game again until the disturbance in the twelfth. The victory is official, however, according to the umpires.

THE Auth's Juniors clinched the section A. Capital City Junior, honors yesterday by defeating Coca Cola Juniors in both ends of a double-header by scores of 13 to 5 and 11 to 10. The section winners packed a batting punch in both contests, getting sixteen hits in the opener and thirteen in the final.

Johnny Wiles pitched the first game for the Auth's and turned in a creditable performance. Raffo and Cappelli were the leading Auth batters, while Lombardi did the bulk of the Cokes' slugging.

Wiles was also credited with winning the second game when he relieved Faber in the seventh to blank the Cokes. Shapiro and Raffo led at bat for the winners with McCracken shining for the Cokes.

In section C. of the Junior class, the Smithfields defeated the Winsalls, 9 to 2.

Mark for Baby Billy In Baltimore Regatta

Baltimore, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A new world's record for Class C outboard speedboats was established today by Mat Waller, of Norfolk, Va., with his Evinrude-driven Baby Billy in the Maryland Yacht Club's three-day international regatta. Baby Billy averaged 28.95 miles per hour for the two and a half mile race, as against the previous mark of 23.32, made by Kirk Aimes, at Newport.

The Curtis Wilgold, owned by Roy Keys, of Buffalo, showed its stern to Horace Dodge's two entries—the Miss Syndicate and the Sister Syn—in the free-for-all, which developed into the most spectacular event of the day. The winner led Miss Syndicate by only 40 yards at the finish.

ST. JOSEPH'S DEFEAT BALLSTON CLUB, 13 TO 9

West Section Pennant is Decided

Saints Rally Near End After Virginians Take Lead.

Nicro and Baker Are Batting Stars in Titular Game.

THE St. Joseph's gained the west section title of the unlimited class in the Capital City League yesterday by defeating the Ballston A. C., 13 to 9, on the latter's field. Rallies in the late innings, after the home team had scored six runs in the fifth inning, were big factors in the victory of the Saints.

Stolle relieved Farrington in the seventh when the latter was forced out of the game because of a twisted ankle, and pitched effectively during the remainder of the route.

Hull hurled the entire game for Ballston and was solved for fourteen hits, the majority of which came at opportune times. Baker's home run clout into the road in right field was the climax of a Ballston rally, that netted six runs in the fifth inning.

The Saints came back strong in the following frame to tally five runs. Then after the Virginians had assumed a temporary lead in the seventh the visitors won the game with deciding rallies in the eighth and last innings. Farrell and Nicro were the hitting heroes of the winners, while Baker was prominent in the attack of the Ballston team

COLLYER'S COMMENTS on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT E. COLLYER

FLAG LIEUTENANT.

Dig down in the old browns and plant a couple of megs on the beezer of this plater at Washington Park today. Goes in the last spasm and they tell me Keller has the boys lined up from Maine to California; taking whatever they can get. In the opening affair, I understand CANBERRA is ripe for a melon cutting. BE STILL recently shipped down from Canada by the Kelley Stable, should not be overlooked. Rome Respess has LAPETITE in the second and with any kind of a good ride will cake walk. GOLFEX and HONEYFISH will be the runners-up.

AGNES CALL figures a shade the best in the third according to my figures. LA MORTE and MISS ROSEDALE for what is left. RUANE gets the call in the fourth. BIG SWEEP needs only to canter to grab the big end of the purse in the fifth.

Over at Hamilton, the sweet patootie is PANDORA in the third event. DEDANS goes in the first race, and they tell me the PETER PAN gelding is already "in." JEWEL KIT is the hot one in the second. Has JAMES F. O'HARA to beat. I also have received word that PHANARIOT is to be let loose in the fifth.

The lads at Fairmount shoot MAZETTA, in the fifth race, as their special. Also BLUEFISH, which is scheduled to go right back in the seventh.

Moose Defeat Circles, 9-2, For Senior Section B Title

THE Moose Seniors, of Southeast, yesterday won the section B senior Capital City League title by defeating the National Circles, of Northeast, 9 to 2, on the East Potomac Park diamond. The Moose, by virtue of their victory, will meet the Auths, winners of section A, in a double-header next Sunday, which may decide the championship.

O'Connor was the hero of the Moose victory. He held the Circles to three hits and fanned fourteen batters. However, he was given fine support.

Oehman pitched a better game for the Circles than the score indicates. The Moose had no big rally, but just pecked away, taking advantage of all breaks to score in seven of their eight innings at bat.

Biddle, the Moose catcher, came through with the feature hit of the game—a homer—and in addition contributed a single. Clanton and Jarman also got two hits each.

Tremonts Stop Keanes, 7-5, For Petworth Senior Title

THE Tremonts won their second consecutive Petworth League championship yesterday, when they defeated the T. T. Keanes, 7 to 5 in the deciding game of the play-off title series before a throng of 2,000 fans on the Ellipse diamond.

The Tremonts launched an attack in the opening inning to score 6 runs, which proved the margin of victory. Successive hits by Brown, D. Ciango, Clark, D. Galotta, P. Ciango, followed by a triple by Baker and an error, accounted for the six tallies.

After this inauspicious start, Freschie settled down and scattered three hits over the remainder of the route. Baker was accorded fine support of his mates, who contributed a pair of sparkling double plays at critical stages. The fielding of Willener at third base for the Tremonts was another highlight of the game.

Brown and J. Freschi led their respective teams at bat.

Cherrydale Winner Over Addison, 8 to 7

Cherrydale defeated the Addison A. C., 8 to 7, yesterday, and evened the series between these teams. A scoring spree in the second inning that netted six runs, was a big factor in Cherrydale's victory. Robertson and Unverzagt were the batting stars of the game.

FRANCE MAY HOLD NET CUP FOR YEARS

selves are confident of this they indicated today on their return from Philadelphia, where they won three out of five of the challenge round matches from the United States and reached a goal they have been steadily nearing for three years.

With some conservativeness, M. Pierre Gillou, French captain, declared he "hoped" his players would be able successfully to defend the trophy in Paris next year.

Most American critics are less cautious. They regard the French just now as invincible. They expect Lacoste or Cochet, but probably the former, to complete their conquest here by again carrying the American singles championship back to France in the title tournament at Forest Hills this week. They do not see much prospect of America's regaining the tennis heights for some time to come, now that Tilden and Johnston appear definitely to have taken the downgrade.

Tilden will make a determined effort to win back the singles title this week, but it appears doubtful whether his resources will be sufficient for him to keep his game at top notch for a week, especially as he would be called on to face Cochet and Lacoste on successive days to do so.

"Big Bill" still has his old wizardry of stroke. For two days at Germantown he was close to being as invincible as ever. But the strain of carrying the main load of Davis Cup defense, plus the inevitable toll of 34 years, proved too much.

This may be Johnston's last year of competition in the East or in international campaigns of any sort. The gallant little Californian has been threatening to retire for some time. Business kept him from coming East as early as usual this year. His consequent lack of practice, thought at first likely to be an advantage, in a saving of stamina, turned out to be a boomerang. It seems certain he will not appear again, at any rate, in Davis Cup competition.

The two 1927 Davis Cup alternates, 20-year-old George Lott, of Chicago, and the 18-year-old Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif., may be the corner stones in constructing a new American Davis Cup team. They developed rapidly this year.

Lott showed particular promise and has the distinction of being the only American outside of Tilden to defeat Lacoste this year. He accomplished this feat in an invitation tournament at Southampton, Long Island. Tilden did it at Paris in the United States-France team matches.

American tennis leaders, among them Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War and donor of the trophy, accept the loss of the Davis Cup philosophically and expect the passing of Tilden and Johnston from a dominant position to stimulate the up and coming crop of younger players. In the past seven years only one youngster, Vincent Richards, was able to dislodge either Bill from the singles of the Davis Cup play. Vinny did it in 1924, when he replaced Johnston.

Incidentally, had Richards remained an amateur and been on the team this year a different story might have been written on the challenge round. Richards' departure to professional ranks broke up the championship doubles team he formed with Richard N. Williams beating the French in 1925 and 1926. Tilden, as a result, was forced to share the doubles play last week, playing three days in a row. Had he conserved his strength for the singles alone, Big Bill might have turned the tables on Lacoste for the deciding point.

ACES MIDGET SECTION B WINNERS

Fisher Steals Home to Beat Eskimos, 3-2, in Final Game.

SCORELESS until the eighth inning, the Aces rallied to score three runs and win the Section B Midget class title yesterday by a 3-to-2 score from the Eskimos on the Monument Grounds. Capt. Willis Fisher scored the winning run by stealing home.

Orville Brown pitched a brilliant game for the Aces, but was matched by Bill Payne, of Eskimos, who deserved a better fate. More alert support would have brought him the honors. Each team collected five hits with Brown the only player to hit safely twice.

The Aces will begin the play-off for the Capital City championship next Sunday, meeting the Sam Rices, winners of Section A.

NATS TIE SOX IN 9TH AND WIN IN 12TH, 6-5

any retrieving efforts that the Nationals might decide upon.

These four runs helped to knock Urban Faber out of the box and brought Ted Lyons to the firing line. Lyons, who shut out the Nationals on Friday, was no puzzle yesterday.

He was one of the six pitchers in the game. Washington used Zachary, who was no bargain. Braxton later followed and was relieved by Walter Johnson. Lisenbee pitched the last three innings and was given credit for the victory.

Manager Ray Schalk, of the White Sox, was banished from the game in the twelfth by Umpire McGowan, when he protested a third strike on Mostil vigorously enough to assure his banishment.

Red Faber was blasted off the pitching mound without ceremony in the ninth when Washington engineered a batting rally that scored four runs and tied the score. A telling two-base hit by "Goose" Goslin with two on base and one out, emptied the bases and tied the score.

Young Hayes, who conducted himself like a veteran throughout the contest, started off this rally with a single to right field and advanced on Ruel's walk. Lyons relieved Faber and Rice flied out, but Manager Harris scored Hayes with a single to right field. Speaker advanced Harris with a lucky single over Ward's head and Goslin's blow drove both Harris and Speaker home. Judge later walked, but neither Tate nor Bluege were able to produce.

Zachary was soundly thumped during the first three innings, but he was also a victim of loose play by Rice and Goslin in the outfield that accounted for a run. The White Sox scored a run in the first on Flaskamper's double and Kamm's single and five straight hits, coupled with errors by Goslin and Rice scored three more off Zachary in the third. Braxton held the Sox helpless until the seventh when Hayes' excusable error allowed Kamm to score from third with a run.

Washington in the meantime had had little to do with Faber, although managing to score a run in the eighth when Goslin was hit by a pitched ball and registered on hits by Harris and Tate.

Following the uprising in the ninth, which sent the game into extra innings, Lisenbee held the White Sox in check. In the tenth he walked Reynolds with one out, but the latter was caught stealing. In the eleventh, Clancy's single and Crouse's sacrifice put a man on second with one out, but both Lyons and Flaskamper popped to Hayes. In the twelfth Kamm filed out, Mostil saw a third strike go by and Metzler flied out.

The Nats never threatened to win the game again until the disturbance in the twelfth. The victory is official, however, according to the umpires.

AUTH'S DOWN COCA COLA TWICE

Win Junior Section A Title; Wiles and Raffo Stars.

THE Auth's Juniors clinched the section A Capital City Junior honors yesterday by defeating Coca Cola Juniors in both ends of a double-header by scores of 13 to 5 and 11 to 10. The section winners packed a batting punch in both contests, getting sixteen hits in the opener and thirteen in the final.

Johnny Wiles pitched the first game for the Auth's and turned in a creditable performance. Raffo and Cappelli were the leading Auth batters, while Lombardi did the bulk of the Cokes' slugging.

Wiles was also credited with winning the second game when he relieved Faber in the seventh to blank the Cokes. Shapiro and Raffo led at bat for the winners with McCracken shining for the Cokes.

In section C, of the Junior class, the Smithfields defeated the Winsalls, 9 to 2.

Capital Juniors Win Over Brentwood, 6-4

Mark for Baby Billy In Baltimore Regatta

Baltimore, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A new world's record for Class C outboard speedboats was established today by Mat Waller, of Norfolk, Va., with his Evinrude-driven Baby Billy in the Maryland Yacht Club's three-day international regatta. Baby Billy averaged 28.95 miles per hour for the two and a half mile race, as against the previous mark of 23.32, made by Kirk Aimes, at Newport.

The Curtis Wilgold, owned by Roy Keys, of Buffalo, showed its stern to Horace Dodge's two entries—the Miss Syndicate and the Sister Syn—in the free-for-all, which developed into the most spectacular event of the day. The winner led Miss Syndicate by only 40 yards at the finish.

DOUBLE WIN FOR KLAN NINE

K. K. K. Beats Hiser All-Stars, 4-0, and Silvers, 9 to 1.

THE Ku Klux Klan Team scored a pair of impressive victories yesterday, blanking the Hiser All-Stars in a 4-to-0 game, and defeating the Silver Hill aggregation, 9 to 1, in an abbreviated five-inning affair.

In the fray with the All-Stars, Dick Hughes outpitched Finwick and Marosey in a brilliant mound duel. Hughes granted only four hits and was invincible in the pinches.

McDaniel's triple in the fifth inning with two mates on the bases spelled defeat for Finwick, who kept the Klansmen's hits well scattered. Hatcher and Hooe also hit well for the victors.

The game with Silver Hill proved an easy victory for the Klansmen, who piled up a nine-run score in the first four innings. The losers had obtained only one hit off the combined offerings of Hatcher and Womersley, when the game was halted by darkness.

The Homemaker

FIRST of all, a cake recipe from a friend.

Prince Albert Cake.
(Mrs. Howard.)

½ cupful raisins.
½ cupful butter.
1 cupful brown sugar.
3 eggs (save the whites of two of them for filling).
½ cupful sweet milk.
2 tablespoonfuls molasses.
2 cupfuls flour.
2 teaspoonfuls cinnamon.
1 teaspoonful nutmeg.
1 level teaspoonful soda.

Put the raisins in a saucepan with a cup of water and let them simmer. Cream the butter and brown sugar, add one whole egg and the yolks of the other two, beat the mixture well and add the molasses and the milk. Sift flour, spices and soda together and beat into the first mixture. Then drain the raisins and add while hot. Bake in layers and put together with boiled icing made as follows:

Icing.

Boil one cupful of sugar and one-quarter cupful of water until it threads. Pour this sirup slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, beating the whites constantly as the hot liquid is added. Flavor either with vanilla, lemon or almond extract. Should the sirup boil too long the frosting will fail, for the sirup will harden as it comes in contact with the cold egg white. (In keeping with our policy, recipes are tested before publication.)

And now to answer a very nice letter from a friend, yes. We have heard more or less of late about the advantage of aspirin in the water for cut flowers, Miss Mc.—but frankly, it is hard to say whether or not it is an advantage. Sometimes it has seemed to help the flowers with which I have experimented at home, and sometimes they have apparently drooped more quickly, as though in spite. But there is an old remedy for preserving cut flowers of which I happened to hear a number of years ago and which I do not hesitate to pass on to you now, for as the autumn months slip along toward winter we shall indeed have reason to cherish our flowers, for soon they will be something of an extravagance. This remedy may serve with more success than aspirin. Place a bit of either saltpeter or baking soda in the flower water and each day change the water, adding fresh material and cutting a bit of the stem from each flower. Do not move the flowers about to place them in a cooler temperature for the night for when they are returned to the heated room in the morning they are almost sure to droop from the sudden change of temperature. Personally, I consider little sprays of fresh, green Wandering Jew a suitable and decorative item for the living room or dining room table during the cold months of the year, and particularly is this plain little green plant an ornament if it is allowed to trail over the side of a pottery bowl of a design in bright colors. Italian pottery here finds a place. We have doubtless all seen the little flower-pot-shaped receptacles that are to be had for a very small sum and which, with a green, may provide a table decoration for our whole winter season.

But enough concerning the table. With what foods shall we today supply it? As it is Monday, here is a simple and easy menu and recipe. Well do I know the tired feeling that is so often a part of late Monday afternoon—following the straightening period that Sunday makes necessary.

MENU.

Celery Currant Jelly
Lamb Chops en Casserole
Lettuce, Chopped Celery, String Beans
Salad with French Dressing
Graham Bread
Coffee
Berries with Cream or Chilled Melon

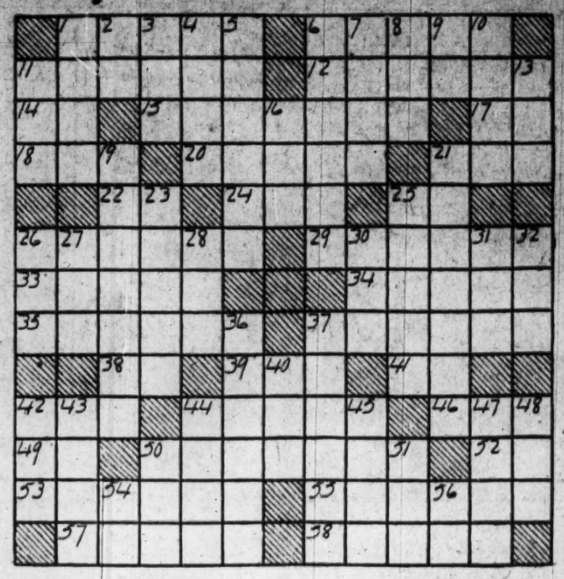

Lamb Chops en Casserole

6 rib lamb chops (or more if necessary).
2 cupfuls soup stock.
2 slices of onion (large).
Salt, pepper and thyme.
2 cupfuls cubed potatoes.
2 cupfuls green peas.
Salt and pepper.

Have the butcher remove an inch and a half of the length of bone from the chops. Brown them in as little fat as possible. Place in casserole dish, add stock (stock may be made with bouillon cubes) seasonings, the slices of onions and the potatoes which have been parboiled in salted water. Add peas (preferably fresh peas) and cook the whole in a covered dish in a moderate oven until the potatoes are done. The liquor may be thickened before serving if desired.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

A Social Worker's Views.

DEAR Miss McDonald—Will you dare to publish this letter, I wonder? Not that you personally resent the frank facing of facts, but somehow the press in general seems so disposed to gloss over the truth or shrink from presenting it.

I am a social worker, and to my mind it is appalling that society does nothing to avert the certain calamity that must result from present day social conditions among the lower grades of humanity.

Can you imagine any two human beings without a dollar in the world producing fifteen children whom they can not possibly feed, much less clothe? Yet I find this condition repeatedly. May I quote a page from my note book?

Case No. 1, "Mrs. N"

Husband tubercular, unable to work—eight children under 11 years of age. Youngest three weeks. Next older child 11 months. Three with rickets. No food in house. Rent paid by ——."

Case No. 2, "Mrs. B"

Seven children under 12 years; goes to hospital Monday for eighth child. Husband alcoholic. Will not work. Family destitute. Two youngest children still crawling due to bow legs. Husband abusive. Resents interference. Rent paid—food lacking."

I could go on indefinitely. Here are two litters of human beings unfed, from infancy, in a few years they will be full fledged "radicals," gunmen, and thieves. They will demand of the world that permited them to be born a living which they are not physically or mentally able to work for. Reared in filth and degradation; bred to disease of body and mind, they arrive at maturity unfit to meet the most ordinary problems of adult life. What chance have they? And what chance have we against their depredations?

Why does civilized society allow these conditions?

Why is this certain menace to public safety and decency permitted to grow as it is growing. Herds of unfed humans clamoring for what they can not earn.

Is there no way to waken the intelligent minds of this land to the conditions that exist?

And will you do your part by publishing this letter?

SOCIAL WORKER.

How Many Can You Answer?

Each question counts ten. If you answer eight correctly your intelligence rating is 80 per cent. Actual tests reveal that eight out of ten correct is college standard; six out of ten correct is high school standard; four out of ten correct is grammar school standard; less than four correct is uneducated standard.

2. What is a watt?

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

The pointer for today is:

THERE ARE MANY HANDS IN WHICH THE QUESTION OF WHETHER DEALER SHOULD MAKE A SUIT BID OR PASS IS DOUBTFUL; NO FEATURE OF THE GAME AFFORDS GREATER OPPORTUNITY FOR SKILL.

Last week a series of twenty hands supposed to be held by a Dealer was given, and this week we have another series of Dealers' hands; but this time, instead of deciding whether to bid No Trump or pass, the question will be whether to bid a suit or pass. It is more complicated than the question considered last week and it will be more difficult to make a perfect score.

Tomorrow the correct bids for the first four hands will be given and the reasons explained. On Wednesday, hands Nos. 5 to 8 will be analyzed and so on at the rate of four per day. Fill an answer slip today and each day note whether your answers have been correct and, if not, why not. This is an opportunity for an interesting contest. Get your friends to fill slips and at the end of the week see who has the best score.

Score love-all; what should Dealer declare with the following hands?

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

FORKS OR FINGERS

THE following letter, while addressed to Viola Paris, seems to have been meant for me, since it asks questions about the etiquette of eating sandwiches.

"When eating a topless sandwich, do you eat it with your hand or use a fork? I have seen them served many times and have always eaten them with my hands. I thought no kind of sandwich, except a club sandwich or a double one, was to be eaten with a fork. However, lately I've noticed that several people do use forks. I shall thank you very much for your opinion.

M. H. J.

I am not quite sure what a topless sandwich is. To my mind a sandwich must be two pieces of bread or toast, or a roll, with something between them. When a piece of bread is cut into shapes and has caviar, or eggs, or anchovy, or anything of that kind on it, it is a canapé, or a relish, or hors d'oeuvre, and not a sandwich.

I should say that the way to eat these was dependent upon how they were served. If you are seated at the table when they are handed, I should use a fork. If you were standing in the drawing room and they were handed round with the appetizer, I should use my fingers.

Of course, I may have misunderstood the question. But I should certainly make the distinction that a relish might more easily be eaten in the fingers when a person was standing and had a glass in one hand; while, if seated at the table, with implements about one, it would be natural to use a fork.

The club sandwich is a sort of meal in itself and would be eaten with a knife and fork as any rather hearty combination of food might be. I do not know of any other such large sandwich, but, if there are others, I should take a fork to them.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

QUESTIONS ABOUT FACIAL BLEMISHES

DEAR Viola Paris: Can you suggest a remedy for small pimples that are more or less under the skin, but cause it to feel and look rough? What can be done to cure the terrible combination of oily hair and dandruff? I have avoided massaging the scalp with olive oil, thinking that would increase the oiliness. Thank you for helping us.

A. AND B.

Answer: First make sure that the diet and elimination are taken care of, and then begin local measures to rid the skin of blemishes. Avoid heavy or greasy creams. A cleansing lotion is good, but don't forget a warm water and soap cleansing once a day. At night, after removing all grime and make-up, apply to the face a clean washcloth that has been wrung out in hot water—to soften the skin. Then work in a lather of tincture of green soap. After this, any secretions of foreign matter can be gently coaxed out of the skin with the fingers, a towel being wrapped over them. Before going to bed, an antiseptic ointment should be applied in a thin film.

No, olive oil applied to the scalp before the shampoo does not increase oiliness; on the contrary. About two weeks should elapse between shampoos. You ought to use a good drying tonic every day, and a dandruff ointment several times a week. Rely on the comb rather than the hairbrush.

Troubled and "Dumbdora:" For pimples, please follow the advice outlined in the first paragraph above. Avoid rich foods.

Dear Viola Paris: During the warm weather, my back and chest broke out with pimples and blackheads. I thought this trouble would go away as the weather became cooler, but I am mistaken. Can you tell me what is the matter? E. B. H.

Answer: These blemishes were not caused by the heat, although indiscretions in diet during hot weather were very probably responsible. Pimples on the body are invariably due to some internal disorder, such as constipation. Fresh fruits and vegetables and buttermilks are a combination that is a wholesome cleansing diet. Scrub the body well every day with warm water and antiseptic soap, applied with a long-handled bath brush. You may use a healing ointment at night.

Brown Eyes: See answer to E. B. H.

Dear Viola Paris: What can be done to get blackheads out of the nose and chins when they are very small and caused, most likely, by too much vanishing cream and powder? What can be done to keep nose and chin from shining?

What should I do for my eyebrows? I have pulled until they grow very fast and come too far down. They have turned black, although my hair is brown.

I am 5 feet 1 and weigh only 100 pounds, although I look about right. How can I gain weight? RUBY M.

Answer: You ought to discontinue this plastering of the face with cream and powder, especially since you already realize that it is harmful. Follow the treatment given in the answer to the first letter in this column. Use a slightly astringent face lotion after cleasing. Going over the face with absorbent cotton saturated in eau de cologne will help to keep away the shine. You may use a pure fine powder that agrees with your skin, but be sure to dust it on lightly. An antiseptic powdery lotion is another good measure for your purpose; get one that is made by a recognized specialist.

I am afraid that you are perfectly well aware of your faults, yet do nothing to overcome them. I hope that you have stopped pulling out your eyebrows. Let them grow naturally. Brush them upward each day, then straighten the line at the top of the brows with your comb. Very dark brows are a mark of beauty.

What makes you think you are underweight? You are just right and should be glad you are not gaining.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A RARE DAY.

In all the days of the year come a few
Like this to be long remembered,
Days that the memory oft shall renew
After the year has Decembered.

Trouble-free, lovely and calm, as if care
Neither had been nor would be tomorrow;
As if none had a burden to bear
And beauty were free from all sorrow.

A day of perfection that brings
Thoughts and dreams and delights in its measure,
When the soul of man dances and sings
Though his pocket be empty of treasure.

All down through the year it will live
To the last bleak, gray day of December
And color and charm it will give
To the joys a man smiles to remember.

Such days of rare beauty are few
For storms come and sorrows to grieve us;
Days like this are like dreams that come true
Bringing something which never will leave us.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertinent to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE.

FROM the standpoint of danger to life or susceptibility to any serious disease, low blood pressure is of no consequence. The insurance companies like to take people with low blood pressure. If they are able to pay premiums at all, they are likely to pay them annually for a good many years. There is big money in insuring people with low blood pressure, and every insurance company feels they have captured a prize when they get such a fellow. It is the opposite of high blood pressure, and high blood pressure causes them to cash a lot of policies.

A great many people who live to reach 90 years of age and over tell about being invalids until they were about 50. Such people had low blood pressure when they were young, in all probability. It was not until they were about 50 that the natural tendency of age to raise blood pressure brought theirs up to normal; that they began to feel right. When they reached about 80, they had the blood pressure that most folks have at 50, and they felt accordingly.

Low blood pressure tends to promote longevity.

Nor is low blood pressure the outstanding symptom of any disease. It is true that it is present in a long list of diseases.

In his book on hypotension Friedlander names 29 diseases and abnormal conditions in which low blood pressure is a part of the picture. But in none of them is it more than a secondary feature thereof. Probably it is not even of secondary importance in any except pneumonia and Addison's disease.

But in spite of the safety of low blood pressure and its tendency to promote long life, most of the people who have it are dissatisfied and would like to swap it. The theme of the book on "Hypotension," by Friedlander, is that low blood pressure is merely a plane on which the body functions, or a symptom, or something of that sort, and when a person has it and would get rid of it, he must start with his low blood pressure as an effect and find the cause. There are many of them.

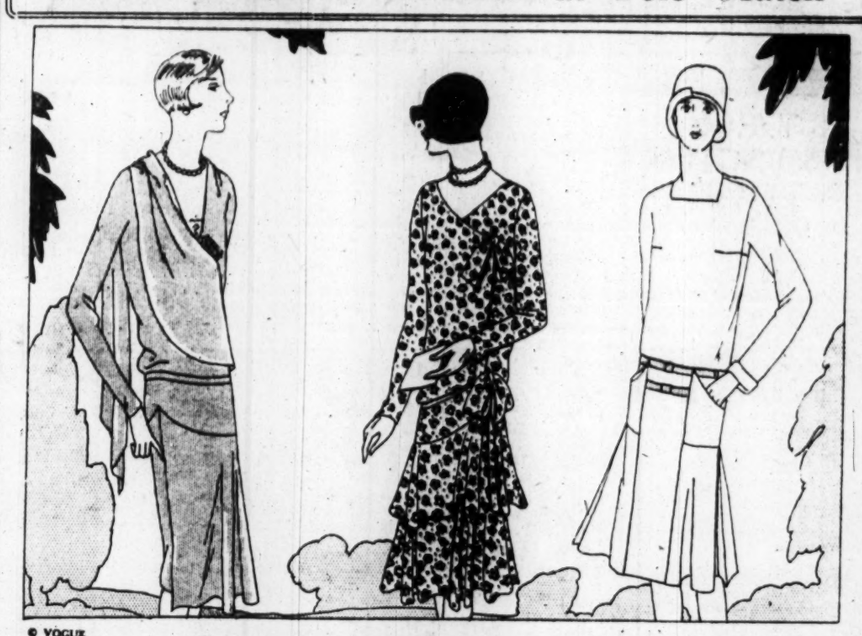

After all the ordinary cases due to ordinary causes have been considered he discusses the group of cases which have some other but undiscovered cause, and these he calls cases of essential hypotension. They are the low spirited, without enthusiasm, achy, complaining lot who are just so and nobody knows why. He thinks some of them will be improved by wearing corsets, binders and supporters, turning somersaults, and such organ lifting procedures and appliances, but not all of them. Some can use gland extracts with advantage. He suggests the use of histamine, a substance made by some of man's own organs. Perhaps later on he may find a way by which the patient may make his own histamine, and thus cure himself.

If we get a clear cut idea of what is essential low blood pressure, we may find a way to train ourselves away from it.

Spanish Public Men Poor.

Madrid, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—It is a commonly expressed ambition in Spain to "live like a cabinet minister," but the holder of such a position is generally on the brink of bankruptcy unless he has private means. He gets 2,000 pesetas a month—about $400—and if he has an average family he must spend some 2,240 pesetas monthly.

Smart Costumes Sketched at Polo Match

© VOGUE

DEAR Eve: I went to the first of the international polo matches and of course I was all "a dither" with excitement. All the world and his wife were there and all degrees of smart and unsmart women exhibited themselves.

To sketch all or nearly all the well-dressed ladies that caught my eye was, naturally, out of the question. The first lady at the left was very striking in a chartreus green crepe dress that had Vionnet's complicated simplicity. The lady was very blonde and she must have had courage to wear a color like that, but she was quite right and The broad fold of material that was draped diagonally upward from the waist was thrown carelessly over the right shoulder and hung down her back. She also wore a beautiful pin made entirely of oblong diamonds.

The girl in the center was dressed in black and white. This combination, when it is well done, is undeniably very, very smart. The skirt of her frock was in two circular flounces. They were low on the hips and their fullness was concentrated at the sides, leaving the front and back quite flat. The two bow-knots formed a softening finish for the severe neck-line and the tight-fitting diagonal band about the hips.

The third lady wore an all-white flat crepe frock. Two vivid green shiny little belts were the only trimming to be found anywhere about her. The dress depended for its chic solely upon its subtle beautiful cut. The skirt was moderately circular with box pleats and the diagonally cut patch pockets were the only dissenting note in the general slim square whole. Her hat was white felt, quite untrimmed with a curiously cut brim. The woman wearing this costume had blue-black hair and a lovely golden sunburn; certainly she well understood her assets and cleverly exploited them.

Love, CLARIBEL.

Commissioner to Ask Cooperation of Dealers, Now in Convention.

GYPSIES ON WRC RADIO

Having explained to listeners, station owners, manufacturers and others the part they must play in the national program for better broadcasting, two members of the Federal Radio Commission today will begin to enlist the cooperation of the radio dealers in the movement. To this end, Chairman W. H. G. Bullard will address the annual Atwater Kent dealers' meeting at the Hotel Hamilton, taking for his topic, "How Radio Dealers May Aid the Radio Commission." At the same time Commissioner H. A. Bellows will address the Atwater Kent dealers in Philadelphia.

The day's program in Washington will open with a housewarming this morning at the Southern Wholesalers, Inc., distributors, followed at 12 o'clock with a luncheon at the Hamilton. Then will come an afternoon business session of dealers, concluding with a banquet at 6 o'clock followed by vaudeville.

For the benefit of baseball fans who are already speculating on the outcome of the world's series, the first of a series of "Preworld Series Reviews" will be presented by Waite C. Hoyt, star Yankee pitcher, at 6:15 o'clock tonight from WRC.

with the reappearance of the A. & P. Gypsies tonight at 8 o'clock for the coming season, Roxy and His Gang will be on the air only an hour instead of the usual 90 minutes. The Russian Cathedral Choir will be featured tonight. This choir is an outgrowth of the original choir at the old Russian Cathedral, on East Ninety-seventh street, New York City. When that organization, known as one of the finest choral groups in the country, disbanded its conductor Nicholas Vasilieff, built up the present choir.

Nicholas Vasilieff was born in Petrograd of a gifted musical family. His father and seven brothers were all professional singers, and like Vasilieff himself were all tenors. Vasilieff was originally a boy soloist with the finest cathedral choir in his native city and was later brought to America by the old Russian Cathedral to sing in the choir.

The A. & P. Gypsies, directed by Harry Horlick, will open a new season of broadcasting for listeners of WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The personnel of the A. & P. Gypsies, a versatile string ensemble, comprises a majority of musicians who claim Russia as their native land. Their programs will continue to feature Russian and Hungarian selections.

An opera by Bizet, "The Pearl Fishers," will be performed in tabloid by the National Grand Opera Company at 8:30 o'clock. Caruso was the outstanding soloist of this opera when produced in New York in 1916.

The South Sea Islanders, with Norman Clark, tenor, will be on the air at 9:30 o'clock, followed by the Palais d'Or Orchestra.

The students of the O'Connor School of Expression will be heard from WMAL at 9 o'clock tonight.

Farmhouse Haunted By Odor of Violets

Newport, England, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A Monmouthshire farmhouse here is "haunted" by an odor of violets.

An overpowering perfume of freshly gathered violets fills one of the rooms to such an extent that the tenant has had to vacate it, and although the floorboards have been examined and the walls distempered the odor persists. The house is nearly 300 years old.

A legend has been unearthed of a girl who was stabbed on her wedding morning by a jilted lover, and the story says that she was killed while arranging a bowl of violets.

The farmer discredits the tale, but careful investigation leaves the mystery unsolved.

MODISH MITZI

More Ways Than One to Be in Fashion

By Jay V. Jay

It's undeniably true, thinks Mitzi, that velvet is going to be tremendously smart this season. There's this velvet coat with its wide jabot collar as a brilliant example of what can be done . . . but it isn't the sort of coat one could wear today or tomorrow. Meantime, what of the velvet mode?

Since velvet is so exceedingly smart why not some dress accessories of velvet while waiting for the chilly weather that will make velvet coats and dresses comfortable? This velvet hat with its rinestone watch dog? This close fitting toque of felt and velvet and its round jeweled pin?

Black velvet opera pumps, outlined with a thread of strass, have a black velvet evening bag trimmed with silver and monogrammed with rhinestones to match. Surely if Mitzi buys these now it will be equal to an announcement to all her friends that the vogue of velvet is too important to be put off.

And just so that she may support the cause of velvet fashions thoroughly and in all weathers Mitzi buys this raincoat of printed velveteen. She does believe in doing things thoroughly and, by the way, couldn't she use a daytime pouch bag of velvet with a tortoise shell frame quite easily?

Music Lovers Find Liszt's London Home

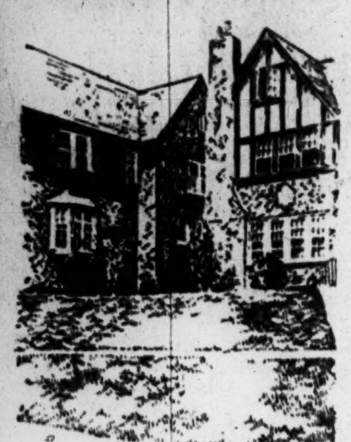

London, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Music lovers have discovered that Liszt at one time lived in Sydenham, a southeastern suburb, and had many associations with musical people in South London.

Liszt was the guest for some time at Westhill, Sydenham, of Henry Littleton, head of the music publishing house of Novello. The building is now an orphanage for the sons of school teachers. It contains a music room where Liszt met members of the best English musical society.

It is proposed to erect a memorial to the great musician at this house.

BOND MART ENLIVENED BY NEW U. S. FINANCING

Dullness Marks Week's Trading in Listed Issues; Money Situation Easy.

FOREIGN SECTION IS QUIET

New York, Sept. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Behind the extreme dullness of the listed bond market last week was a colorful background of considerable interest. The announcement of terms of the new Treasury financing, oversubscription and closing the books of the $500,000,000 securities involved therein, and the further revival of the new offerings market were among the incidents which gave the bond situation an appearance of new life and presaged a fall of activity in the mortgage trade.

It is perhaps significant that the renewal of the flow of new issues finds the market in a large measure prepared. The glut of fresh material, which proved a severe handicap during the late spring and until July reinvestment funds began their curative process, has been practically cleared away, so that dealers' shelves provide ample space for the reception of bonds now coming on the market. That the situation is healthy is exemplified by the readiness with which the new offerings of the past two weeks have been absorbed at good prices.

Easy money conditions, of course, were behind the quick welcome which the market accorded the new flow of bonds. Attesting this, and foreshadowing a protracted period of low money rates, was the Federal Government offering of $250,000,000 three to five-year securities at 3½ per cent, and a like amount of six months notes at 3 per cent. Although there had been shadowy expectations here and there that the Treasury might obtain terms even lower, or that a long-term issue might appear, the response of the market indicated that bond dealers were not disappointed. Investment buying continued and in some instances showed a gratifying acceleration following the Washington announcement.

Prices, however, moved in a horizontal line, just under the year's peak in the majority of cases, and fractional recessions here and there were easily traced to profit-taking operations.

That the recent increase in volume of new offerings has been no "flash in the pan" is indicated by a survey of loans now in the making and due to reach the market within a week or two. The bulk comprises public utility financing, the largest piece in actual sight being a loan of $80,000,000 to the Cities Service Power & Light Co. More remote, but yet reported on the way is an issue of $70,000,000 for the New York Light & Power Co. in connection with an ambitious consolidation plan. September 15 will see the opening of bids for a group of issues aggregating nearly $20,000,000 of City of Detroit bonds.

Foreign loans in the course of negotiations have shown, on the surface at least, only nominal progress. The French refunding operation is not likely to come to a head before the end of the year, and various Polish, Italian and other European loans are still matters of the future. One of the German loans, an issue of $25,000,000 for the Deutsch Bank, has been purchased by an American syndicate for offering within a short time.

August, with new offerings aggregating more than $375,000,000, doubled the record of the same month of last year, and ran far ahead of July, 1927. Last week's total fell short of the $110,000,000 aggregate established in the preceding week, and compared with approximately $53,000,000 in the first week of September last year.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has been in business since 1899. It manufactures and markets plug, twist and smoking tobaccos and cigarettes. Among the better known of its products are Camel cigarettes and Prince Albert smoking tobacco.

During the ten years which ended in 1926 net profits available for common and Class B common stocks, after allowing for preferred dividends requirements, totaled almost $166,000,000. This amounted to an annual average of $16,580,645, or to an average of $5.18 per share on shares of $25 par value. Earnings on the combined common stocks were equal to $5.96 per share in 1922, $6.75 in 1923, $6.99 in 1924, $7.44 in 1925 and $8.20 in 1926. During 1926 the rate had been increased twice—the first time in January from $3 to $4 a share, the second time in July from $4 to $5 a share. A 25 per cent stock dividend was paid on the common and common B shares in February, this year.

BOND MART ENLIVENED BY NEW U. S. FINANCING

Dullness Marks Week's Trading in Listed Issues; Money Situation Easy.

FOREIGN SECTION IS QUIET

New York, Sept. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Behind the extreme dullness of the listed bond market last week was a colorful background of considerable interest. The announcement of terms of the new Treasury financing, oversubscription and closing the books of the $500,000,000 securities involved therein, and the further revival of the new offerings market were among the incidents which gave the bond situation an appearance of new life and presaged a fall of activity in the mortgage trade.

It is perhaps significant that the renewal of the flow of new issues finds the market in a large measure prepared. The glut of fresh material, which proved a severe handicap during the late spring and until July reinvestment funds began their curative process, has been practically cleared away, so that dealers' shelves provide ample space for the reception of bonds now coming on the market. That the situation is healthy is exemplified by the readiness with which the new offerings of the past two weeks have been absorbed at good prices.

Easy money conditions, of course, were behind the quick welcome which the market accorded the new flow of bonds. Attesting this, and foreshadowing a protracted period of low money rates, was the Federal Government offering of $250,000,000 three to five-year securities at 3½ per cent, and a like amount of six months notes at 3 per cent. Although there had been shadowy expectations here and there that the Treasury might obtain terms even lower, or that a long-term issue might appear, the response of the market indicated that bond dealers were not disappointed. Investment buying continued and in some instances showed a gratifying acceleration following the Washington announcement.

Prices, however, moved in a horizontal line, just under the year's peak in the majority of cases, and fractional recessions here and there were easily traced to profit-taking operations.

That the recent increase in volume of new offerings has been no "flash in the pan" is indicated by a survey of loans now in the making and due to reach the market within a week or two. The bulk comprises public utility financing, the largest piece in actual sight being a loan of $30,000,000 to the Cities Service Power & Light Co. More remote, but yet reported on the way is an issue of $70,000,000 for the New York Light & Power Co. in connection with an ambitious consolidation plan. September 15 will see the opening of bids for a group of issues aggregating nearly $20,000,000 of City of Detroit bonds.

Foreign loans in the course of negotiations have shown, on the surface at least, only nominal progress. The French refunding operation is not likely to come to a head before the end of the year, and various Polish, Italian and other European loans are still matters of the future. One of the German loans, an issue of $25,000,000 for the Deutsch Bank, has been purchased by an American syndicate for offering within a short time.

August, with new offerings aggregating more than $375,000,000, doubled the record of the same month of last year, and ran far ahead of July, 1927. Last week's total fell short of the $110,000,000 aggregate established in the preceding week, and compared with approximately $53,000,000 in the first week of September last year.

Earnings on the combined common stocks were equal to $5.96 per share in 1922, $6.75 in 1923, $6.99 in 1924, $7.44 in 1925 and $8.20 in 1926. FEDERATION HEAD OUTLINES CAMPAIGN FOR CITIZEN BODIES

Yaden Urges Groups to Seek Fiscal Relations Adjustment for District.

FIVE ASSOCIATIONS HOLD FIRST MEETINGS TONIGHT

Representation in Congress and Transportation Merger Included in Program.

A program of active participation in the settlement of some of the most important problems facing the District government this year was planned last night by James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, as organized citizenry prepared to open its winter campaign tonight with five citizens associations meeting in different sections of the city.

Urging the citizens organizations to take a broader interest in the District's affairs, Yaden recommended that a committee of District citizens be appointed this year to confer with a committee of representatives of both houses of Congress to work out a plan for a more equitable adjustment of the fiscal relations between the District and Federal governments.

Yaden also recommended that the sensation in both houses of Congress, this year "to achieve national representation in both houses of oCngress, and the right to elect the Board of Education; merger of all transportation companies in this city; more level appropriations for street paving, schoolhouse and sewer construction; development of playgrounds, and to prevent exploitation of Great Falls.

He pointed out that the committee of citizens and congressmen should should not only attempt to solve the District's fiscal relation problem for one year, but should seek to perfect a plan which could be applied, with a few minor changes, for several years.

Appropriations Are Urged.

Appointment of a committee of public utilities experts to work out a plan to merge the District's transportation companies, is recommended by Yaden. The civic organizations should urge more level appropriations for streets, schools, sewers and playgrounds, Yaden said, to prevent a reoccurrence of the situation confronting the District this year. Unless additional appropriations are made no new schools can be constructed in this city next year, he said.

The citizens of the District should back the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in striving to prevent industrialization of Great Falls, Yaden believes.

All of the associations which will meet tonight have been inactive during the summer. They are the Piney Branch Citizens Association, the Manor Park Citizens Association, the Takoma Park Citizens Association, the Edgewood Citizens Association and the Stanton Park Citizens Association.

Officers for the coming year will be nominated by the Stanton Park and Manor Park associations.

Prizes will be awarded tonight to the winners in the lawn and garden contest conducted by the Manor Park Association during the summer.

PASTOR URGES STRICTER JUSTICE FOR CRIMINALS

U. S. Lenient With Evildoers, Pitiless With Their Victims, Says Briggs.

POLICE ATTEND SERVICE

Taking as his text "Righteousness Exalts a Nation, but Sin Is a Reproach to Any People," the Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, declared last night that more law observance is needed and less law enforcement.

In view of the enormous losses entailed by criminality, it is fitting and proper that pastors should preach about law enforcement, he said. He deplored the infidelity and destructive criticism of the Bible and urged that the people return to the gospel of the Golden Rule.

Dr. Briggs said the United States is lenient with criminals and pitiless with their victims. He urged a more rigid and implacable justice similar to that exercised in England.

The services were attended by Inspector A. L. Headley and Lieut. William Holmes, of the Fourth Precinct. Inspector Headley narrated many of his experiences while on the police force. There are some on the force who have proved themselves unfaithful, but for the greater part the policemen are loyal, he said. He urged also that the communities of Washington create a moral sentiment that will encourage the officers to suppress lawlessness.

Traffic Snarl Brings Fight, Injuries, Arrest

A traffic snarl at Connecticut avenue and M street northwest last night resulted in the arrest of two negroes on charges of assault, and in the sending of a white boy to Emergency Hospital for treatment for cuts and bruises. The injured boy is Walter Doysdale, 17 years old, of 3306 Cleveland avenue northwest.

The negroes are brothers, Thomas Edward Gravett, 26 years old, and Armistead Gravett, 19, both of 2014 N street northwest. According to police, automobiles containing the white boy and negroes disputed the right of way at the intersection and both refusing to give way, they engaged in a fistic battle. Policemen Frederick A. Schenck, of the Third Precinct, arrested the negroes after a chase, at Twenty-first and M streets northwest.

Fraternity Will Sue For Exclusive Name

The Delta Sigma Phi College Fraternity is preparing to file suit against the Delta Sigma Phi National Fraternity to prevent the latter organization from further use of its name. Before suit is filed an attempt will be made to affect a compromise with the Delta Sigma Phi National Fraternity, attorneys for the college fraternity said.

A. W. Defenderfer, general secretary of the college fraternity, said that the national fraternity was formed by high school students after the college fraternity was organized. When school officials refused to allow high-school students to join fraternities the national fraternity became a social organization, defenders said. In a recent suit before the equity court in Chicago the Delta Sigma Phi National Fraternity was ordered to cease using that name.

available man. Even the Democrats are in better shape than that.

When Mr. Coolidge made his announcement he knew enough of human nature and history not to entertain any hope that he would be drafted. He knows enough of politics to know that the only hold he has ever had over his party has been because of his inheritance of organization control and his subsequent astute use of it.

To issue the kind of statement that he did is not astute usage, if he really has any hope of being President after March 4, 1929. It has already caused a scramble for delegates that are waiting to be scrambled for.

Before the announcement was made there was no one brave enough to go after delegates, not openly at least. The President, had he really wanted the nomination again, hardly would have invited all of this trouble for himself.

Macintosh's Plane Satisfactory in Test

Dublin, Irish Free State, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Capt. MacIntosh, in preparation for his hoped-for transatlantic flight, made a test flight of four hours today, accompanied by Commander Fitzmaurice, of the Free State air corps, who is to go along with him overseas.

The machine made a good take-off with 95 per cent of its maximum load, partly composed of sacks of gravel. These were dropped into the sea before returning, so that there would be no strain on the carriage of the plane on landing. The test was considered satisfactory.

FORMER CAPITAL MAN IS KILLED BY PLUNGE

Harry E. Mace, Inspecting Employes' Work, Falls Two Stories From Roof.

Harry E. Mace, 33 years old, formerly of this city, died Saturday night in Philadelphia from injuries received last week when he fell from the roof of a two-story building, it was learned last night.

Funeral services will be held at the home of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Mace, at 2064 Wisconsin avenue northwest, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery. Besides his mother he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Mace; two sisters, the Misses Margaret and Dora Mace, and a brother, Clarence M. Mace.

Mr. Mace was a member of the Omohundro Club and the Brightwood Church. He left this city about five years ago to establish a sheet metal shop in Philadelphia. He was inspecting the work of some of his employes when he lost his balance and fell from the roof. His skull was fractured.

WORLD FLIERS TWICE ARE DRIVEN BACK

As an officer of the French Army on leave, the flyer said he had cabled the Minister of War for instructions and for an expression of the government's position. Pending a reply he said he could make no further statement regarding his plans.

Previously it was reported that Capt. Fonck had decided to abandon the proposed flight to Paris and that he had let it be known that work on his plane, The Ville de Paris, would be rushed for a flight overland in an attmept to establish a nonstop record.

The French aviator spent the afternoon in the hangar at Curtiss Field making adjustments to the motor of his plane and indicated that the ship will not be flown before Tuesday. He had expected to conduct load tests of the plane tomorrow.

Tampa, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Still firm in their determination to span the Atlantic by air, Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, announced tonight that they would hop off from here tomorrow morning at daylight in their Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, American Girl, for Wheeling, W. Va., the last s[top] before Roosevelt Field, from which they expect to leave for Paris some time this month.

Criticism of transatlantic flight attempts arising from recent disasters apparently had no effect on the young aviatrix and her companion. "We have no intention of abandoning the flight," Miss Elder said tonight. "We shall not make any foolhardy attempts to take off in the face of adverse weather conditions, of course, and will wait for a suitable day. Given this I can see no reason why we should fail."

Keegin and Simpson are charged with having alighted from their automobile, walking back to where Pennybacker's car had stopped and then assaulting the two Berwyn youths. Pennybacker was so severely beaten he was taken to a nearby physician.

The automobile driven by Dodson, according to witnesses, headed for Washington after the alleged attack. A few minutes after Washington police had received a lookout for the three injured men they were discovered in the hospitals.

"OLD IRONSIDES" PROVES SPECTACULAR SEA STORY

Wallace Beery, as Bos'n, Does Fine Work, but Frigate Seems Small.

DEPICTS LIFE OF SAILOR

The much touted and eagerly anticipated Paramount product "Old Ironsides" was launched at the National Theater last night and at last reports she had weathered the bullets of the enemy and was headed once more toward these shores.

When Laurence Stallings conceived the story of "Old Ironsides" it is barely possible that he was in no mood for a "What Price Glory"—there is a reason: In "Glory" there was the stark tragedy of the war, a war in which Stallings had fought; in "Old Ironsides" he was purely a fictionist—and fictionists sometimes let their ideas wander off into the field of superlatives. Thus, "Old Ironsides," with a Hollywood dressing, is simply a sea story of fine proportions enacted by a cast of some distinction.

The boys who are well up on such things as directing continuity, and all that sort of thing, also have the key to the vault wherein is housed the old hokum bucket—and this said bucket was given a great task in the filming of "Old Ironsides."

The story, from a patriotic standpoint, is perfect. There are enough copies of the starry banner filmed to make even the most dyed-in-the-wool patriot become a bit exhausted because of cheering. And there is a scene or two that deserves a bit of critical attention before passing on to the next phase of the production.

The story tells of two sailormen and a landlubber who are shipmates on the Esther, a Salem privateer. They set sail for Naples, are captured by the pirates of Tripoli and escape long enough to get away in a dory but not before the landlubber takes a few moments of the valuable time to make love to his lady who is held prisoner on a boat in the harbor. All this is, very nice—but it is hardly probable that such might have happened beneath the barking guns of a pirate fortress. So much for this phase of the story—the next concerns the actual conflict between the frigate Constitution and the Tripolitans.

The battle scene is, really, a very outstanding piece of cinematography. It is seldom, indeed, that such a massive scene is translated to celluloid, and this alone brings a bit of balm to the customers, who have anticipated this "Old Ironsides" so keenly.

The statement may be made, in all fairness, that the current offering at the National is purely and simply another epic. It is a good picture—interesting—and highly saturated with the elements calculated to bring joy to the advocate of spectacle—but it is no "Big Parade."

Those who are given the parts in "Old Ironsides" seem to have been chosen with some care and diligence. Wallace Beery, now coming to the fore in the ranks of comedians, virtually walks away with a good one-half of the picture. His Bos'n measures up with some of the finest contributions he has yet made to the cinema. George Bancroft, Beery's foil, also makes a name for himself in the realm of comics. The boy featured is Charles Farrell and does as well as can be expected. Esther Ralston plays opposite him, and her lot seems to be that of being pretty. Charles Hill Mailes makes an excellent characterization of Cap. Preble, and Johnny Walker is excellent as Stephen Decatur. A colored gentleman, George Godfrey, made an excellent cook.

Taken all in all, "Old Ironsides" is a spectacular picture. It gives one a faithful insight into the times of Jefferson, when the seas were a paradise for the Barbary corsairs. It depicts the life of the sailor man with some faithfulness, and, also, it contains a love story of some small interest. It will appeal to those who like spectacle, but the ancient frigate is far from the whopper most of us hoped she'd be.

Most Immigrants Speak English, Report

Since the 1924 immigration restriction act went into effect, the English-speaking immigrants to America have greatly outnumbered all other classes, according to a survey recently completed by the National Industrial Conference Board of New York City.

The English-speaking immigrants represent more than 45 per cent of the increase in immigrant population. In actual numbers fewer are coming from Great Britain and Ireland than before the war, but the numbers from Canada and Newfoundland bolster up the average. The huge influx from Italy, noted before the war, has stopped.

AIR STUDENTS EAGER TO HOP OFF GROUND FOR FIRST SOLO TRIP

Many District Youths Train at Potomac Flying School for Pilots' License.

AVIATION ESSENTIALS PRECEDE TESTS ALOFT

Chief Instructor at Field Saw Service in France and in Air Mail Service.

Ground hugging holds no lure for the students at Washington's aviation school. They are eager to fly, and fly they do after a course at the aviation school which is conducted at the Hoover Field by the Potomac Flying Service, Inc.

From the time that the students first begin their ground training until that moment when they take the "joystick" in their own hands and complete their first "solo," these youths and men are possessed with but one ambition and that is to pit their own brain and daring against the elements of the upper air.

The attraction holds for older men as well as for youth. All seem to feel that desire for the wide open spaces and the desire to fly alone.

The flying field is located on the road to Arlington a short distance beyond Highway Bridge. It is both a passenger carrying enterprise and an aviation school. Washingtonians and their visitors are taken aloft for a view of a fairy village, peopled by pygmies, with little trains and street cars wending their way in and out of tiny streets.

The field is best known for its sightseeing business, but to the aspirants for the coveted flying certificate it has but one purpose—to train earth-weary mortals to pilot an airplane.

Ground Training Thorough.

The course begins with a thorough grounding in the essentials of aviation and in the air traffic regulations set forth by the Department of Commerce. This theoretical work is given by Lieut. Edward Rounds, who is in charge of the flight test section at the Naval Air Station. Lieut. Rounds, who is a civilian employe, also lectures to the Naval Reserve. His course includes theory of flight, a simplified history of aviation, map reading, navigation and other kindred subjects. This course takes about a week.

Upon completion of the ground course the student is then advanced to the thrill of riding in an airplane and at last to piloting one himself. Later he drops his instructor and for the first time takes his plane aloft for solo flying. The flight instructors are Lowell S. Harding and Stewart Reiss. Harding is chief pilot and general manager of the field. He took his flying instruction with the Army at Dayton, Ohio, in 1917. He had approximately 1,500 hours in the air in France, instructing, testing and ferfy piloting and had four mounts at the front. In 1919 he was for six months a pilot with the air mail service and the remainder of 1919 and in 1920 he was a commercial flier. He has held a commission in the Naval Reserve for three years and in that time has seen active service. He joined the Potomac Flying Service, Inc., when it took over Hoover Field in April and since then has had more than 500 hours in the air.

Has 50 Hours "Solo."

Probably the most advanced student at the field is J. G. Walker. He has had nearly 50 hours of solo flying time, much of it cross-country flying. He has made flights to Richmond, Gettysburg, Havre de Grace and Annapolis. With a few more flying hours to his credit he will be able to try for his limited pilot's license with the Department of Commerce.

Another outstanding pupil is Nobile Pio Macchi dei Conti di Cellere, Attache at the Italian Embassy here. The count was one of the first pupils to enroll at the school. He has shown great aptitude, according to his instructors, and were it not for the limited time which he can spare the count long ago would have been graduated. He made his first solo flight at Bolling Field.

Two of the most earnest Acolytes at the field are the Somerville brothers, sons of the proprietor of the Thomas Somerville Co., plumbing and heating supplies, of this city. Since the beginning of their course, Harrison and Thomas Somerville have arisen in time each morning to take their lessons at 5 o'clock so that they could get down to their jobs in their father's plant in time for work. Both have made their solo flights and are now putting in their flying-hour time for their licenses.

Students Up Early.

The greatest difficulty the students have is getting an instructor who hasn't a load of passengers to take up. That is why they arrive at the field so early in the morning. The hardest part of the course is taking off and landing. When these two obstacles have been surmounted, they are well on their way to their license. Once they get up into the air, the hardest thing seems to be to fly level and in a straight line, according to Pilot Harding. "Usually they catch on all at once. They come out still duds one morning and come down pilots," he said.

When Henry Berliner, president of the service, finishes the construction of the new plane he and his associates have invented, the field will use this new model exclusively for training purposes. The Fairchild cabin plane now in use for passenger work will be retained and another added to take care of the heavy crowds who feel the urge to view Washington from the air.

The company's planes carry approximately 600 passengers a week. Last Sunday 373 persons were taken aloft. So far, the company has never had an accident. Leo M. Peterson, who was the aviation mechanic for Commander Byrd's North Pole flight, is chief mechanic.

Some of the other students at the school are Ralph Bangs, who made his solo flight Wednesday, achieving a perfect landing; G. I. Hurlebaus, Joseph F. Jennings, Fred Karl, Gordon Patterson, Sidney Shannon and Mr. St. Petrie.

AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

"College," starring Buster Keaton, opened the new week at the Palace Saturday afternoon to capacity audiences.

Buster Keaton's latest is almost a continuous laugh. As usual, Keaton never changes his facial expression during the entire picture. It is this and his clownish movements which provoke the fun. The story is plotless, the picture being made up of athletic practice games on the college campus, and the final college boat race, in which Buster at last becomes the hero of the hour. A novel finis is given the picture. It is entirely a "Buster Keaton" picture, although shots are shown of some fine work on the athletic field by what are billed as real Olympic stars.

"College" is a story of an honor student who does not believe in college athletics until his girl (who does) says she will have nothing to do with him until he takes up some sport. So when Buster gets to Clayton College he goes in to practice all kinds of sports and makes a failure of them all. Opportunity does come, however, for him to put it over as the coxswain for the college crew. How he "puts it over" and wins the girl form the climax.

The stage presentation this week is large and one of the best of the year. The Chester Hale girls, who have become so popular at this house, are held over another week and form the background of a "Follies de Danse" amid beautiful stage settings in silver and black. The presentation is in five scenes closing with a tableau. During this revue Joyce Coles, Mlle. Ella Daganova and Jack Triesault are featured. A pantomimic silhouette titled "L'Affair d'Honneur" is worthy of special mention.

Rome and Dunn, who have been heard at the Palace before, are back with a new program of songs, their voices being even better than on their former appearance. Although they received a number of curtain calls, probably the length of the program prevented an encore.

The Palace Orchestra this week is under the leadership of Don Felice for the overture, given in two parts. The current issue of M-G-M news release is very interesting. An Aesop fable "In Again and Out Again" is the comedy film.

COLUMBIA

"The Big Parade," still thundering its way to popular acclaim, entered its second week at the Columbia day before yesterday, and presages a third. Probably no picture in the last five years, at least, has aroused so much discussion and general praise or drawn such record crowds so continuously. Certainly no picture has deserved more.

The greatness of "The Big Parade" is in its simplicity. The plot is but the usual tale of the boy who goes away from home and his calmly accepted fiance to find that love is not so calm, and that a sweetheart is preferable to a fiance. But "The Big Parade" rests upon greater things. It rose from the ashes of war-stricken towns and it carries with it a great pathos. It is what it claims to be—a war story, a story of the men who fought the war; their tears, their smiles, their sufferings, their daring. It tells what every man who fought could tell, as it comes authentically from men who did fight.

But it is primarily the most vivid picture of what war really means, of what fighting really is, that has ever been drawn in any form. In its intense moments it is hard to realize that it is not reality again. Without its comic relief, its romantic appeal, "The Big Parade" would not be the stroke of genius it is, but without its depiction of the war it would be merely "another" story of love and war.

The direction of "The Big Parade" is superexcellent. The cast is perfectly selected and perfectly molded into the great war drama. "The Big Parade" added greatly to Renee Adoree's fame. It practically made John Gilbert, and Tom O'Brien and Karl Dane are unforgettable as the rookie pals.

"The Big Parade" has fascinated theatergoers for more than two years now. It is probably good for a dozen more.

The current M-G-M release gives some interesting shots of Marcus Loew's funeral. The excellent orchestra embellishment of the film completes the bill.

STRAND

Round and round we go with the "Merry Whirl Revue," the classic playing over at Harry Jarboe's mirth house, the Strand, all this week.

Bebe Tobin, dancing in good form, is the sparkling little soubrette, and with Pearl Wilson, a blonde among blondes, leads the chorus of 25 happy-go-lucky damsels in meritorious numbers. Since there are no programs furnished for this show, it is impossible to guess the names of all the performers, but we do know that there are two very lively and attractive brunettes and two equally peppy and eye-filling blonde young women who work hard all through the revue to please the customers.

Jack Hunt does a toothless tramp comedian, abetted by Bert Marks as a Jewish comic. These two, with Gilbert Mack and Billy Gilbert, put over some funny scenes. The knife-throwing stunt is especially amusing.

"The Last Outlaw," a wild West thriller, with Gary Cooper as the youthful sheriff, out to right all wrong and protect all pretty young girls, is the movie feature, completing the bill with the short reels and house music.

KEITH'S

Miss Cecilia Loftus, who has won her way to international fame by reason of her mimicry, holds the headline position at Keith's this week. Her presentation is booked "Impressions of Stars of Today and Yesterday." Cissie's bit as Sophie Tucker and her final take-off on Florence Reed were all that was to be expected.

The management has held over Harry Roye and Billee Maye, the aristocrats of terpsichore, who danced so excellently well last week. They come back with an entirely new act—and an act just as satisfying as last week's offering. Boyd Davis, who presides over the orchestra during the act, gave a well rendered version of Toselli's "Serenade."

Jed Dooley the stage and screen comic, assisted by Audree Evans, has his old act with new bits of chatter. It is a nationally known product famed as "Remarks Befitting the Occasion" and contains a good bit of wise-cracking. The act received a hand and served to enhance the latter half of the program.

Winifred Byrd, a brilliant little pianiste, is given some ten minutes. The Liszt "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" went over big.

A clever little skit is presented with Almira Sessions in "As We Were"—a comedy featuring women looking like Godey prints and men in period costumes. It contains a bit of music, a bit of comedy—and, all in all, is worthy of the applause it received.

Stan Kavanagh, the "Juggling Humorist" from Australia held down the second flash on the bill with his offering. Marjorie White and Ed Tierney have a skit known by the title "Gawfus-Gawfus-Gawfus." Beulah Stewart and Verle Harrison open the show with their effort at "Parisian Art"—an attractively staged presentation featuring them in artistic poses.

The usual house numbers round out the bill.

EARLE

Click! Click! Click! runs the bill at the Earle this week taken from any angle—and there are some nifty angles.

A deuce spot dominates the stage offering of a long array of numbers. And it is a toss-up as to which should be mentioned first—Guy and Pearle Magley with the tantalizing Melvin sisters as support for their dance numbers and the "Strumming Serenaders" in the background, or Bobby O'Neil in "Oh, Bobby!" a delightful miniature musical comedy starring in part the exquisitely true and sweet voice of Myra Tracy. 'Tis left alone to the visitor.

An aerial number introducing four gentlemen of the flying spaces meets with a spontaneous reception and carries off with "flying honors" an envious place on the bill.

Ann Francis and Mr. Walley have an amusing offering all bound round with wise-cracking and Broadway subtleties.

Polly and Oz in "Scene Songs" have a fast line of patter and song that goes over well.

The feature picture for the week is "Broadway Nights," starring Lois Wilson and Sam Hardy. The basis of the story is married life behind the stage, failure, heartbreak and success. To give the batter firmness there is mixed in with the struggles of the "family troupe" a bit of love and a bit of love's disappointment.

As Johnny Fay and Fanny Fanchette Hardy and Miss Wilson find the profession of acting a difficult one from the standpoint of making it a financial success. But for all that they are married and in due time there comes to bless their union a baby girl. The environment the child is compelled to live in eventually brings estrangement of father and mother—though there are other things—and separately sought careers on the stage.

How the two come to be brought together again and life made easier through success of their vaudeville efforts is the high spot of the story.

For the overture, Floyd Wheeler, exercising the baton, there is Herbert's "Eldorado." Alexander Arons presides at the organ and Kinograms writes the record of the week's events. A well-balanced bill in all of music, song, patter, dance, pretty girls and acrobatics.

RIALTO

Bringing back the days of the famous Mississippi River steamboats, when gambling was a part of any trip on the river and the captains raced their boats for all sorts of wagers or for glory alone, "Cameo Kirby," featuring John Gilbert, is on display at the Rialto this week. Kirby, as those who have read the story will remember, was a famous gambler who played straight but also managed to win.

The story concerns an attempt of an unscrupulous gambler to win the money obtained by a Col. Randall from the sale of his cotton. Moreau, the gambler, has things going his own way when Kirby, learning of the game, forces his way into it and beats Moreau at his own game, winning not only the entire bank roll of the planter byt a deed to his plantation as well. Kirby tears up the deed and is about to inform Col. Randall that he was a victum of trickery which has been averted when a shot is heard and Randall is found in his stateroom, dead.

Of course, there is a girl (Gertrude Olmstead) and equally of course, Kirby sees her and falls in love with her, not knowing that her father has left a note giving the reason for his death and blaming Kirby. How the latter obtains an introduction to the Randall home, finally kills Moreau, the crooked gambler and in a series of exciting incidents wins the girl, constitutes the balance of the story.

Rox Rommell offers a special musical fantasy this week, with himself on the stage at the piano and his orchestra in the hands of Henri Sokolov. The usual comedy, a scenic and an International News reel round out the program.

METROPOLITAN

Oh, the hearts that will palpitate at the Metropolitan this week! For, true to announcements that run like shadows ahead of the sun, Billy Dove, starring individually in "The Stolen Bride," rides high and shining in the cinema heavens.

Built around the eternal charm that feminine loveliness can bring to romance when there is charm to be had in the feminine character, "The Stolen Bride" steps out as a high spot in the land of make-believe love. Miss Dove, as a countess of an old Austrian family, meets all of the onerous duties laid upon her as a free agent in carving out for her life the path that she would trod. She is ideally supported by Lloyd Hughes.

The story of "The Stolen Bride" opens in Austria at the family castle of the Countess Sari and her father. There is a love scene between the girl countess and her peasant playmate, a leave-taking and a promise of marriage down the years when he has gone to America and won fame and fortune.

In America the twain meet, now grown to manhood and womanhood. But they are not permitted to marry—fate and the story decrees that. The young countess is suddenly called home. The youth follows, but there finds himself not at the feet of his bride, but caught in the toils of military service, and to his violent chafing chagrin the lackey of a captain of the hussars, whom the countess' father has set his heart upon as husband for his daughter.

It is a charming story of love finding a way that develops from here. Armand Kaliz, as the hussar captain, renders a meticulous role with exceptional finesse.

Additional screen offerings is a real "chasey Chase" comedy, featuring a girl-shy professor and a schoolroom of girls.

Daniel Breeskin and his orchestral troupe offer a full musical program and a Pathe newsreel of interesting beauties round out the bill.

GAYETY

Bert Bertrand and his 1927 edition of "Wine, Woman and Song," a musical melange which opened yesterday afternoon at Mr. La Motte's little theater of the minor arts, will be holding out for a little encouragement the rest of the week.

Bertrand has gathered around him an array of talent experienced in burlesque. The best of the bunch, excluding Bertrand, is the little girl with a good voice and plenty of versatile personality, Gertrude Ralston. She is good to look at and in comedy scenes is the biggest aid in the show to Bertrand. Arthur Mayer, William Harris, James McCauley and Arthur Kavanaugh are cocomiques (according to Variety). They all wear comedy make-up, but there isn't enough material for them to prove their ability as comedians. Frank Hanscome sings well in a nasal fashion and dances to the queen's taste. The Tracy Sisters do a specialty number of tap dances with professional finish. Ruth Ramon, peppy as they come, occupies the heavy position of singing ingenue and comes through with banners flying. Frank Booth moans a blue number or two and surprises with acrobatic dancing.

The girls of the ensemble are beautifully trained, well-dressed and handpicked good-lookers. The scenery and lighting are fair. The promised surprise finish at the ending failed to come off.

LITTLE THEATER

The Motion Picture Guild is to be commended for holding "Stark Love," the movie made of life down in the North Carolina mountains, over for a second week at the Little.

"Stark Love" is an American-made picture which is a distinct credit to American filmdom, for it compares more than favorably with those realistic productions of foreign competitors in its authenticity of plot and acting. No million-dollar movie this, and yet one which indubitably shall be remembered as an epic. Two children of the mountains themselves, Forrest James and Helen Munday, as the youthful sweethearts, perform in a manner that is delightful in its simplicity. The other actors, most of whom were quite unaware of what was going on, went about their accustomed pursuits before the clicking camera in the same way they always had, and as they very likely still do. Splendid is too banal and inadequate a word to apply to "Stark Love."

"The Ant," a microscopic novelty, and the usual house features complete Mr. Milligan's very good program for the week.

Federal Experts Act To Better Crop Seed

In an effort to decrease crop losses through defective seeds, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics will begin inspecting field seeds in commerce to verify their origin and identity, it was announced yesterday.

Approximately $15,000,000 worth of farm seed will pass under Government supervision during the first year through this method, W. A. Wheeler, chief marketing specialist of the hay, feed and seed division, stated, and will assure the farmer of getting the grade of seeds claimed. About 50 independent dealers and farm cooperatives have applied for the service, which will be given for a sum, sufficient only to meet the expense of inspection.

Woman Jumps to Escape Spouse.

Mrs. Ida May Evans, colored, 27 years old, 436 I street northwest, received bruises and a sprained back when she jumped from the third floor window of her home yesterday morning. She was treated at Casualty Hospital. She told police she jumped to escape her husband, Roger Evans. He was arrested by police of the Sixth Precinct.
